E. church tomorrow evening at an informal gathering in honor of the pastor and his family. The program will be brief. The Ministerial Association members and their wives will be special guests for the occasion. Officials of the church cordially invite the membership and congregation to the reception, which begins at 8 o'clock.

Raven Distinctly Unpopular—

The raven, apparently, has gained little in the affections of the people from its kindly act of supplying Elfish with food when the prodigious was hungry. It is regarded as a bird of ill omen wherever its black shadow appears. Apparently, the good folk of the countryside look on the raven as a sinister bird, and it has not been able to shake from its feathers their evil repute, though it be largely undeserved.

"Warration."

A colored man went to a Morris plan bank to make a payment on a loan and, after looking through all of his pockets, found the correct amount. As he pondered it he remarked "Boss, money ain't a warration, nix' it?" To which he quickly added, "Money and warration be the very same 'cept warration ain't true."

SECOND GAME GOES TO YANKS, 3 TO 0

of his hand. He managed to recover the ball, however, before it could fall to the ground. He was cheered every time he caught the plate and every time he caught a fly.

The Yankees' three runs came in the first, fifth and sixth innings. Miller opened the game with a single to center and took second on Pecking's sacrifice. Douglas to Kelly Miller scored when Ruth hit the first ball pitched to him to center field. It was a hot drive, and brought great cheering from the big crowd.

Third Run in Sixth.

The Yankees got men as far as second base in the second and fourth innings. In the fifth McNally opened with the only double of the game, was advanced to third on Schang's sacrifice, Douglas to Kelly, and stole home.

The third run came in the sixth. Peckinpaugh singled to short. A passed ball by Snyder allowed him to gain second. After Ruth struck out, trying to put the ball out of the lot, Bob Meusel hit to left center, scoring Peckinpaugh. Meusel drew up on third for what looked like a perfect three-bagger, but was called out for not touching first base. After this inning only one Yankee reached third base.

The Giants threatened the home plate twice. The best chance to score came in the fourth inning with Frisch on third and only one out. He had reached first on a single to right, stole second and took third on Young's sacrifice. Mays to Pipp. He was left there, as Kelly struck out and Emil meusel grounded out, Peckinpaugh to Pipp.

The other chance came in the sixth inning on Frisch's triple after two were out. Young, however, was not equal to the occasion, going out, Peckinpaugh to Pipp. The Giants had been left on second in the first and second innings.

As for the temper of the crowd, it was remarked that some degree of the enthusiasm witnessed at most world series contests seemed lacking. There was a ready enough explanation of this, too, when it was recalled that this crowd was one divided against itself, with probably a 50-50 split between Giant and Yankee rosters. From this it need not be taken that the usual roaring outburst of pleasurable words were not in evidence when things took favorable turns for one side or the other, but simply that at no time did stands and bleachers arise as one man to shout the shout of the joyful. Something like half the crowd did not feel much like shouting.

Mays Pitches 86 Times.

An analysis of the pitching shows that Mays in nine innings pitched 86 times, an average of 9.1 an inning. Twenty-eight of these were balls, 18 were strikes and nine foul strikes. Twenty resulted in infield outs and five in outfield flies. The five hits of the Giants and a hit later accounted for the remainder.

Douglas sent the ball to the plate 103 times in the eight innings he worked, almost 13 to the inning, 39 times pitching balls, putting over 25 strikes and six foul strikes and being touched for three fouls which did not count as strikes. Fourteen infield outs, one outfield out and the Yankees' five hits made up the remainder. The Yankees' other two hits were made off Barnes, who pitched 22 times, 10 balls, seven strikes, one foul strike and two outfield outs.

Although Douglas was credited with a lost game, he struck out six to Mays' one. Ruth fell a victim twice in his last two trips to the plate. On one of these occasions there was a man on second. Peckinpaugh, Ward, Schang and Mays whiffed once each. Schang also was struck out by Barnes.

Kelly Only Giant to Fan.

The only Giant to fan was Kelly, who cut the air with a man on third. An odd incident of the game was that not a Giant outfielder made a putout.

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

This Business For Sale

A wonderful opportunity for some young man, or man and wife, to engage in one of the best paying business propositions in this city. Also a splendid business for some lady who could take charge of the store. Would take at least half cash, balance we would carry for a term of years at 8 per cent interest. Owners desire to retire from active business.

If interested, would be pleased to talk it over with you.

It doesn't take a Florist to run this business. Any good business man or woman can be just as successful as we have been (perhaps more so.)
