

LOGGING MEN TO MEET SOON

Elmer I. Stoddard Is One of Speakers on Pacific Logging Congress Program.

The program of the twelfth annual session of the Pacific Logging congress at San Francisco, October 26-29, issued by Secretary George M. Cornwall, of Portland, indicates that the meeting will be the most interesting of any of the logging operators' conventions. Various phases of logging activities will be shown by motion and stereopticon pictures, and the convention will conclude with an excursion to the redwood logging and saw-mill operations of the Union Lumber company at Fort Bragg, Calif. Reduced rates will be obtainable over the railways on the certificate plan.

On the program are several Oregon operatives in the logging industry who will read papers and participate in the scheduled discussions. They include A. H. Powers and F. W. Powers of Coos Bay; W. C. Kuegitz, Portland; J. J. Paulson, Portland; J. S. O'Gorman, Portland; Matt Egan, Algoma, Ore.; J. P. Van Orsdel, Portland; Elmer I. Stoddard, La Grande; J. H. Meister and S. A. Blakely, Bend; C. S. Briggs, Portland; D. E. Stewart Knappa, Ore.; J. C. Flora, Kerry, Ore.; C. K. Spaulding, Portland; Faye Abrams, Eugene; A. S. Kerry, Kerry, Ore.; J. C. Johnson, Klamath Falls; W. A. Erwin, Knappa, Ore.; Paul E. Freydis, Goble, Ore.; David T. Mason, Portland.

Old Soldier Is in His 103rd Year Now

PETERSBURG, Va., Oct. 6.—Joseph Samuel Langford, one of the oldest living Confederate soldiers, celebrated his 102nd birthday anniversary the other day with a walk about a mile and a half enroute to this city to be entertained by members of the Daughters of the Confederacy. He took his "next" at a barber shop before the entertainment "to get fixed up for the girls," as he said.

Mr. Langford, who lives with his daughter in Chesterfield county, has 15 grandchildren and 45 great-grandchildren. At 41 he joined the Confederate Army, served in a number of battles including the Battle of the Crater, and delights in telling his experiences as a Confederate spy. He is active and goes about unaided.
