Expression Traced to Gaelic. The expression "son of a gun" is quite common in South Wales. It is thought by some that the word "gun" is derived from the original Gaelic "gunn" (modern Welsh "gun"), meaning a bow; if so, the expression "son of a gun" is a fragment of old Celtic mythology, the bow or catbron in both Irish and Welsh mythology being the source of old origin of embryonic life.

ALICE BRADY SCORES HIT AS IMMIGRANT

After several years of successful starring in dramas of the smart set, Alice Brady has turned a sudden right about-face, and in a wonderfully simple, appealing tale of humble people and their grim fight with poverty and discouragement, achieved perhaps the finest role of her whole screen career. "The Land of Hope," which will be shown Sunday only at the Arcade Theatre, is the new play. It is a collaboration by the famous comedy-writing Hattora, Frederick and Fannie, with Robert Milton in the story construction, and Fred Myton lending his experienced hand at the scenario preparation. E. H. Giffith directed the piece. The play presents Miss Brady in the role of a Polish immigrant girl, who, with a group of humble folks from her native village, seeks her fortune in America. The girl Marya, and her lover, Sascha, both quaint, wistful, appealing figures of repressed youth and timid hope, are the oddest and most interesting pair of lovers who have been seen on the screen for some time. A comedy is also being shown.

"OUT OF THE SNOWS," MOUNTED POLICE STORY. Ralph Ince, aided by Zena Keefe, and a capable cast of supporting players brings to the screen of the Star Theatre today and Sunday a new National Picture, "Out of the Snows." Mr. Ince both directed and enacts the star part in "Out of the Snows," and the result is one of the best pictures seen this season. The story is one that is unconventional even if the setting of the Canadian Northwest is more or less familiar to patrons of the photoplay. The plot, in brief, tells of the love of the young Holliday for Ruth Hardy. Just at the moment of their greatest happiness a cloud appears on the horizon in the form of Blakeman, a fur trader. He tells Ruth that Holliday had killed her father. She leaves and Holliday does not know why. Bob turns to his work to find relief. Blakeman crosses the path of the law, and this results in some blood-stirring scenes in which the best man wins and the truth is uncovered. Vivid contrasts are shown in this picture, with scenes from the vast snow-covered wastes alternating with those of elaborate modern interior settings. Beautiful photography, excellent technical work in every department and capable acting combined with intelligent direction make "Out of the Snows" a photoplay of distinction. A two-reel Mack Sennett comedy is also being shown.

Diligence Quantly Advised. Let every man that hath a calling be diligent in pursuance of its employment, so as not lightly or without reasonable occasion to neglect it in any of those times which are usually, and by the custom of the prudent persons and good husbands, employed in it.—Jeremy Taylor.

Great Deal for Understanding.

I believe that the greatest desire of every human heart in the world is just this: The desire to understand its own experience. That is a hunger that is at the root of all the great religious faiths in the world—all great emotional fervency whatever—the emotional hunger of the human heart to put its straight and ordered, so that it can understand instead of being bewildered.—John Dehlwater.

Now We Know Where We Are

It's good to be getting back to normal again. Good for us who sell, and you who buy.

We can all know where we stand; know what to do.

New it's clothing that has gotten back to normal; back to stable prices; back to fixed values that we can all figure on and feel at home with. 1922 woolens range the same as this year's goods, with changes too slight to effect the made-up garment.

So you can buy once more without any uncertainty or misgivings; without any lingering, reproachful suggestion that it might be better to wait.

And we can all look forward to a long, quiet period of safe, sane, steady business in clothes, with no disturbances, quite like old times.

Boxing Gloves on Fighting Cocks.

An English farmer was recently haled into court and fined on the charge of keeping a place for the purpose of cock fighting, but he made the defense that the sport as indulged in at his place was not an offense within the law, as the birds fought with boxing gloves instead of spurs.

Beyond Compass of One Mind.

Prof. J. J. Sylvester, the English mathematician, who died in 1897, is said to have been the last man who ever thoroughly familiarized himself with all branches of mathematics as known in his day. The subject is now so vast that no human mind could possibly master the whole of it.
