"BOB HAMPTON OF PLACER" IS NEILAN'S BEST YET

What may well be described as a classic of the silent drama is Marshall Neilan's spectacular, colorful and thrilling production, "Bob Hampton of Placer," which is being shown at the Arcade today, Friday and Saturday.

Not since "The Birth of a Nation" has any subject with a portion of American history as a background been so splendidly made into a motion picture, and in many ways the Neilan masterpiece outclasses the Griffith production.

One of the most picturesque periods of American history figures in "Bob Hampton of Placer," namely, the Indian uprisings which followed the Civil war. And in the climax to this production, which is adapted from Randall Parrish's story of the same name, General Custer's famous last stand against the Sioux is reproduced and immortalized on the screen in a most fascinating and dramatic manner.

Interwoven skillfully in this thrilling background is an absorbing and beautiful story of faithful comradeship and love, as well as of adventure.

James Kirkwood, in the title role, gives a masterful portrayal of Bob Hampton, the gambler, who, dismissed from the service in an army scandal, is restored to a place of honor with Custer in the battle of the Little Big Horn.

Marjorie Daw has the leading feminine role, and Pat O'Malley, as Lieutenant Brand, is seen as a gallant officer of Custer's staff and as an ardent lover. Wesley Barry, with his brightest lights in the production. Others in the cast are Noah Beery, Frank Leigh, Dwight Crittendon, Tom Gallery, Priscilla Bonner, Chas. West, Bert Sprotte, Carole Clark, Ward, Vic Pottel and Bud Post.

"Bob Hampton of Placer" is released by Associated First National Pictures, Inc. It is a great production—the best thing yet made by Marshall Neilan—and that is saying a great deal.

Pauline Frederick, famous Robertson-Cole star, has been acclaimed as the greatest dramatic actress the screen has ever known. This very fact makes it a task of the utmost difficulty to find stories sufficiently strong in dramatic power to fit her requirements. Readers are constantly engaged in the scenario department of the Robertson-Cole studios, scanning every available bit of material, and it is only after a story has proven its worth from all angles, that it is finally selected as a screen vehicle for Miss Frederick.

A truly human tale, "Salvage," has the rare merit of absolute sincerity. It has little of the spectacular nature, but there is in the unfolding of this drama, a heart appeal, a simplicity, a realism, that will hold any audience.
