As a general thing, when a girl discovers that she's got dimples on her shoulder blades she's going to dress that way.

Graham Indictment Quashed by Judge

OREGON CITY, Oct. 7.—The indictment returned against Dr. J. P. Graham, in connection with the wreck of a liquor-laden auto was dismissed by Judge Campbell yesterday when word of the doctor's death was received by the court.

At the time of the trial of J. I. Smith, who was jointly indicted with Dr. Graham and Morris Galbreath for illegally transporting liquor, it was rumored that in event of the death of Dr. Graham from injuries received in the wreck, that Smith, who was driving the car, would be brought to trial on a charge of manslaughter. Levy Stipp, district attorney, said yesterday that no further action against Smith is contemplated.

Facts about Employment

The absorbing question of the moment—how can men hold their jobs—will employers take on more men or lay them off?

Each employer must answer for himself. We are trying to do our share. We are helping build up the industries of the Northwest. Today

—we have 90 more employes on our payrolls than last year

We aren't creating jobs for these men. We need their services. Our output is growing steadily because we have maintained one high standard of quality for more than thirty-eight years.

You're keeping more employes in can factories—in box factories—in logging camps—and you're getting for yourself the best your money can buy when you ask for
