ADVANCES MADE BY SURGERY

Dr. Mayo Calls Attention to Developments Made Possible by World War.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—Surgery is advancing into a new era opened by the World War, Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., told the American College of Surgeons at the opening of its annual congress here last Monday.

"The Great War brought in a close a period in scientific surgery, of which the late Dr. John B. Murphy of Chicago was the most brilliant exponent," said Dr. Mayo, in delivering the John B. Murphy oration on surgery.

"This period was characterized by the advancement of the principles of surgery, investigation of the relation of micro-organisms to disease, and the development of clinical medicine on a pathologic basis.

"As a result of many causes, of which the profound influence of the Great War may be counted as one, we see, perhaps dimly, that surgery is taking on a new aspect.

"It is no longer possible for the individual surgeon, in the face of the enormous amount of new and as yet unorganized knowledge, to cover the ground that Murphy covered."
