AGGIES STILL HAVE A LOT OF FIGHT LEFT

GORVALLIS, Nov. 10.—Football players of the Oregon Agricultural College here have but one thought in mind these days and that is to "smash Oregon" when they meet their ancient foe, the University of Oregon, at Eugene November 19 in the annual state championship game.

The "Fighting Aggies" originally were set this year to win the Pacific Coast Conference title but were practically eliminated from the race when Stanford University, in one of the season's biggest upsets, defeated them 14 to 7.

The Aggies next Saturday meet Washington State college here and if they win they will have two victories and to defeat in the race for the Northwest Conference title, the local team having defeated Willamette early in the season.

Nearly every O. A. C. student is going to Eugene for the Oregon game and the new bleachers have been erected at Hayward Field to handle the crowd expected.

The Oregon team which is not rated as strong as Oregon teams of the past, has been holding secret practice lately and several changes have been made in the line-up.

Money Wanted for Health in Islands

Dr. Jacobo Pajardo, chief of the health department of Mindanao and Sulu, says the Moros and other tribes in the southern islands have not reached a degree of enlightenment which would make them seek hospital treatment and therefore it is necessary to carry the treatment to them.

JOSEPH HOLDING BIG CELEBRATION

Many Things of Interest Recorded from the Wallowa Country Near Joseph.

JOSEPH, Nov. 10.—(Special.)—Saturday was Mrs. W. C. Wilson's 70th birthday and Mrs. Geo. Gailley came up Friday from Enterprise to help celebrate.

J. E. Snider is out in the Chinimaw country with a hunting party from Enterprise. During his absence the family are staying with Grandma Snider near Enterprise.

St. Lawrence Osborne left Tuesday on a business trip to Ireland. His family accompanied him to La Grande, where they will visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McCully and Frank made a week-end visit to La Grande, motoring out Friday evening and returning Sunday.

The County Health Nurse was in Joseph Monday and Tuesday. She was accompanied by Mrs. George Holmes Tuesday.

Dr. Fred Wilson of Eagle Valley was in town the first part of the week on business. As a boy Dr. Wilson lived for several years on Upper Prairie Creek.

Mrs. S. A. Blevins of Divide left Friday for Vancouver and Portland to visit relatives.

Joseph is celebrating Armistice Day with a full program beginning at 10:00 a. m. and lasting until everyone gets tired and goes home. There will be a parade the first thing with a flag raising at the park and a return to the football grounds, where there will be a further program, lasting until noon, when the feature of the day—a real old-fashioned barbecue will be held, with Frank Stevenson as chief cook. Mr. Stevenson needs no introduction to any devotee of good eats around Joseph. Not only will there be "roast ox", but coffee, banana baked beans—beans baked in huge pots in the ground, that will make the noted member of the 57 varieties look like less than thirty cents. After dinner there will be games and at dark a big bonfire and community sing. Then, if that is not enough, there will be both a picture show and a dance to round out the evening and everyone will know that Joseph is glad the war was ended.

Miss Marjorie Peterson, county health nurse, was in Joseph to attend a meeting of the Joseph committee of the County Health Association. Matters pertaining to underweight children were discussed and plans made for nutrition classes under the supervision of Miss Ella Allen, domestic science teacher in Joseph high school. Miss Allen has taken special training along the lines of nutrition work and offers a splendid plan for the building up of underweight pupils.

These days when the true relationship between the backward pupil and the undernourished child has been clearly established special pains are being taken to encourage not only children, but parents, to carefully observe rules of health such as plenty of plain food, fresh air, exercise and sleep. Children are found to do more better school work under a careful schedule of right living and will grow into better balanced and more reasonable citizens.

POLITE PRISONER LEAVES

MOUNT STERLING, Ill., Nov. 10.—Police, even in making his escape from county's most considerate prisoner, has deserted the jail, leaving it vacant. He left a note for the jailer, who sometimes bore him company. It read: "I'm leaving, I'll be back in February in time for my trial."

Dog Breaks Leg Of Boy Who Was At Play

Seven-year-old Wesley Pagar, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pagar, suffered a broken leg several days ago as the result of being run over by a large shepherd dog. Wesley was playing in the road with some companions roasting apples around a bonfire. A boy on a horse came down the road at a gallop, followed by a large dog. The dog did not see the boys in the road and ran over Wesley, breaking his leg three inches above the knee. He is in the hospital and getting along as well as can be expected.

equivalent and the addition of such lights as may seem advisable." This survey will be made with reference to the residence section, as well as the business section.

Mr. Lottridge also presented estimates for new construction and changes that may be wanted by the city.

The question of ornamental standards in the business section will be left for the commission to decide at its leisure. Although last summer the company announced that it expected to replace all its downtown installation this fall and if the commission decided on having it moved to the alley for a new system before the new installation had been put out, the city would have to pay the expenses of moving to the alley. Last night, however, Mr. Lottridge stated he would have only the most necessary replacements made and the change, unless unforeseen circumstances arise that will materially change the company's attitude, when the city was ready the company would make the necessary changes.

hearing completion but the work on the grade proper is well along at various points from Perry to Hilgard.

All three men agreed that for scenic grandeur, the trip from Kamela to La Grande over the new grade has few equals in Oregon, needing but completion of the monster bridges and overheads to lend that touch which makes the mountain road one of grandeur as well as majestic beauty.

"Certain sections of the new grade can be used easily, but to go the full distance is no feasible, nor should be tried," said Mr. Couch on his return.

AGAIN MAKE EFFORT TO CO-OPERATE

er and feeder cattle and eventually a more stabilized market. Through large numbers of farmers marketing together it is anticipated they may be able to sell to better advantage than the individual farmer does today.

If the plan is ratified today, as it is anticipated it will be, formation of the National Livestock Producers' Association is expected at this meeting. Several co-operative livestock commission houses have recently been formed, and more will be established as soon as practicable.

The livestock business runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars annually and proponents of the plan anticipate a substantial share of this but have no expectation of getting it all. Extension of the plan will chiefly affect small and inefficient privately owned livestock commission firms out the various markets, according to the committee, which says it is generally recognized there are too many of these now operating to handle the business efficiently.

The problem of orderly marketing however does not admit of so ready an approach. The orderly marketing sub-committee reports today that the accomplishment of the more orderly marketing of the different kinds of livestock is a long process. There is no easy way or any outstanding short cut.

A broad campaign of education, dependable statistical information, intelligently interpreted, organization of large numbers of producers on a strictly co-operative basis, and some regulation of conditions and volume of production are declared essential to orderly marketing.

Chairman of the committee bringing in the report of livestock marketing committee is C. H. Gustafson, of Lincoln, Nebraska, who performed a similar task this spring for the farmers' grain marketing committee of Seventeen. H. W. Memford, director of the livestock marketing department of the Illinois Agricultural Association, before that a professor in the agricultural college of the University of Illinois, is secretary of the committee.
