BIG CITY POLICE TRAINED IN HANDLING ANGRY MOB

Mob spirit is continually confronting the police. Police officials know that a false movement may rouse to fighting pitch, while firm, kindly action will quickly scatter a crowd bent on mischief.

Crowd psychology has, therefore, been made a part of police training in the bigger cities, so that an officer may be prepared, by word or deed, to turn the tide when the crisis arrives. What happens when there is no one at hand to do this service is shown with tense effect in the first episode of "Fighting Fate," the latest Vitaphone chapter play, with William Duncan, to be shown at the Sherry Theatre soon. In a thrilling scene, Duncan is arrested as a deserter from the 15th Infantry by leaping from a second story window. It was then found that after he had quit the army add.
