BIG CHINATOWN VIEWS IN HAYAKAWA SUBJECT

Few of the sightseers who throng the narrow streets of Chinatown in New York or San Francisco are fortunate enough to glimpse beyond the painted exteriors. If they could look within they would be surprised for inside the dingy little dwellings are often found apartments furnished more sumptuously than fabled palaces.

In Sessue Hayakawa's most recent production "Where Lights Are Low," released by R-C Pictures Corporation and being exhibited at the Sherry Theatre, much of the action occurs in San Francisco's Chinatown. In an effort to reproduce faithfully the interiors of lavishly furnished Chinese homes, Robert Ellis, art director, spent several weeks in research work and many of the interiors designed for this production were modeled after prints of sumptuously decorated Chinese apartments.

"MOTHER O' MINE" REVIVES CAPITAL PUNISHMENT FIGHT

The widely-discussed question of capital punishment and its abolition has been revived in many quarters by the appearance of Thomas H. Ince's stirring melodrama, "Mother O' Mine," which opens at the Arcade Theatre on Thursday.

For more than half a century the abolition of capital punishment has been an issue in American public life. Several states have dispensed with the death sentence as the supreme penalty for crime, and one or two of these states have returned to the noose and the electric chair as the only effective means of both punishing and diminishing murder.

Very truly yours, J. A. CHURCHILL, Supt. of Public Instruction. 12-8-21

The decriers of capital punishment who have seen the Ince drama advance this episode, which has been duplicated in real life when circumstantial evidence has brought men to their doom, as an argument in support of their demand for doing away with the electric chair and the gallows.

There are many instances on record, they declare, where innocent men and women have suffered the death penalty when subsequent events proved their innocence, and they argue that "Mother O' Mine" is a vivid dramatic example of the fallacy of the system now generally in vogue.

A TRULY TALENTED BOY.

Just as Joseph J. Dowling is now called "the Miracle Man" of the screen, and Betty Compton is called "the Miracle Maid" because of their parts, Lee is known as "the Miracle Boy." But that is not just because he made the big scene of the play by dropping his crutches and running to the feet of the Patriarch. In every play in which he has appeared, Frankie has been called a miracle boy, because neither producers, directors or fellow-stars ever saw anything like him. He is a mystery, a prodigy.

Frankie's first notable role was in "The Westerners." Then came "The Miracle Man," and since then several Benjamin B. Hampton pictures. The latest is "A Certain Rich Man," the great photoplay of William Allen White's famous work, in which he plays "Neal Ward" in the second period of the story. "A Certain Rich Man" released by Hoekinson is presented at the Star Theatre today Thursday and Friday.

Are You A Weak or Ailing Woman?

Here is Something Worth Reading. Your Health is YOUR MOST Valuable Asset.

Brockton, Mont.—"After the arrival of my boy, I was so worn-out and run-down I could scarcely get my work done and at times I was so drowsy it was just like trying to work in my sleep. Having known of the satisfactory result of the use of Dr. Pierce's medicines (my father having taken the Golden Medical Discovery with great success about six years ago) I wrote Dr. Pierce describing my case, and was advised to take the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Ironie Tablets'. After taking four bottles of each I could see a marked improvement in my health. To all afflicted as I was, with a run-down, worn-out nervous system, I would recommend the use of these two medicines."—Mrs. Eva E. Jenkins.

Health is wealth. Do not neglect the most valuable asset you have. Write Dr. Pierce, president Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., and receive good medical advice in return, free. Send 10c for trial pkg. of Ironie (iron-ionic) tablets.

"A Man in Good Circumstances"

When a man is described as "in good circumstances" we picture a pleasant home, a happy family, a few luxuries, freedom from debt.

Such a man usually attains his enviable position through his own industry and thrift. Like Napoleon, he can exclaim "Circumstances?"

I MAKE Circumstances.

That such men always have savings accounts is not a happenstance but a self-create circumstance.
