AT SHERIDANS TODAY AND WEDNESDAY

Thrills and laughter are happily combined in Dorothy Gish's latest Paramount comedy, "The Ghost in the Garret." What this is one of the best comedies in which Miss Gish has been seen for many months all her admirers will agree after they have seen the picture.

Miss Gish, in the story, is a poor girl who sees to the care of her wealthy uncle and aunt, taking her dog and parrot with her. The dog puts a fashionable party in rout and from that moment the action is not permitted to drag for an instant. Then comes the theft of a valuable pearl necklace by a society crook who flees with his booty to a haunted house, where his pals are in hiding. Going in pursuit of the thief to protect her sweetheart who has been arrested for the theft she finally recovers the jewels after a series of thrilling and laughable developments.

INTERNATIONAL LAW CONFLICT LONDON, Jan. 27.—A new and embarrassing point of international law relating to the confiscation of church property in wartime has arisen in the British Prize Court. Claims aggregating many hundreds of thousands of dollars have been entered by the owners of such articles as reliquaries, surplices, altar cloths, memorial windows, statuary, gold communion cups, crucifixes and rosaries, all of enemy origin, which were shipped by German and Austrian agents or manufacturers to American merchants, churches and colleges while the world war was in progress. The ships conveying the goods were seized by British warships and the goods sold by public auction as enemy prizes. Owners in the United States, under the leadership of Goetz & Co., of Chicago, and of Trofel in Germany, represented by former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, claim the amount realized from the prize sale, and losses and damages. Claimants argue that under the laws of war of all nations, all church property is sacred and exempt from war seizure. The British government, however, contends that the money paid to the shippers of the sacred goods went to German firms to be used by Germany in the prosecution of the campaign against the Allies. The British procurator—General Crompton—has just decided that the question is so delicate and so involved with old and new regulations and war practices that it must go to the whole aspect before the full prize court, because there is doubt whether the German firms in Germany did not have an interest in the American firms, and also whether the prize court ought not to submit the case to the Washington conference to be settled under the new international laws of war. In the meantime, the money remains in the British Treasury, awaiting a new dispensation on the rules affecting church property in wartime. Roman Catholics all over the world are showing great interest in the issue. AN OBT-OLD TALE NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—John D. Rockefeller, whose public gifts are predicated five hundred million dollars, starts off his benefactions with contributions of 5 cents a week to foreign missions and 3 cents to the poor. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his son, Sunday told members of his Sunday school class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist church. The Standard Oil magnate kept a ledger which showed such items, his son said, and also revealed that he then paid $1 a week for board and lodging. COURT REVERSES. WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The supreme court Monday took a recess until February 27. This is the regular February recess.

"THE LITTLE MINISTER." JAS. M. BARRIE'S FAMOUS NOVEL AT ARCADE

Simplicity and charm stamp the Vitagraph production "The Little Minister," which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre today and Wednesday as one of the biggest pictures of the year. It is to the screen what James M. Barrie's story is to literature, and seldom does the spectator find a film version of a famous book that adheres so closely to the story as outlined by the author, as does this Vitagraph production—nor could a cast be selected which was better suited to the characters described in the story than that engaged for this production. Nothing has been left undone to give the production the atmosphere of the Scotch hamlet of Thursum. The thatched roofs, the whitewashed walls, the stucco country folk, and even the red-roofed soldiers are all true to life. David Smith has achieved great success in pictures of this kind, and adds another gem to his long string of successes by his work with "The Little Minister."

Alice Calhoun, a rising star, who has rapidly come to the forefront in screen production, has never had a role in which she adequately illustrated her ability as an actress. Her personality, her physical fitness and her charm lend themselves well to the character of Lady Babbie. She is a living embodiment of the heroine in James M. Barrie's story. The scene where she matches her wits with those of the little minister, the role assumed by James Morrison, whose work as a screen player is well known, is exceptionally good. Her struggle with Rob Dow, village drunkard, a role assumed by William McCall, in one of the most realistic pieces of acting ever presented on the screen. Little Richard Daniels, a child actor, who has recently come to the forefront, proves his claim to the rights of being included among the screen prodigies of the present generation.

The storm scene and the flood are spectacular, yet natural. Realism has been the aim rather than massive construction. The same touch is present in the castle scenes which, although original, are not gaudy and are in keeping with the period and nature of the story. Even in the gayest camp scenes the effort has been for realism rather than the spectacular. The zany life is enacted as it exists, shorn of the bizarre effects which are found only in fiction and screen stories.
