FAMOUS CAR DRIVEN BY HINES IN AUTO RACE PICTURE

In his initial feature-length starring vehicle, "Burn 'Em Up' Barnes," an exciting automobile racing story that is being shown at the Star Theatre today and Friday, Johnny Hines (Toreby) Hines drove one of the most famous racing cars in the East.

The automobile, which was built especially for Ray Howard, the famous speedster, began its career on the Eastern tracks and won several grand prizes. Later it was entered in the famous Sheephead Bay race, where in the course of a trial spin, the gas tank caught fire and the entire body of the machine rained, the driver and his mechanic having narrow escapes. The automobile was overhauled and rebuilt and entered the big race at Indianapolis, during which it overtook on a curve, breaking Mr. Howard's legs and killing the mechanic.

Howard again rebuilt it and entered it at the Allentown dirt track race, which he won, and later repeated the performance at several other meets. Johnny Hines says that it is the best car in the world, except his, and he ought to know since he drove it at a seventy-mile-an-hour clip for a goodly part of the day during the filming of the racing scenes.

"Burn 'Em Up' Barnes" is a whirlwind automobile racing story, packed with thrills, hearty laughter and heart interest, of which Raymond L. Schroek is the author, and was directed by George A. Swanger. Betty Carpenter is the leading woman, and the cast includes Edmund Breese, George Fawcett, J. Barney Sherry, Matthew Betts, Dorothy Leeds, Julia Swayne Gordon and others.

CURWOOD SCREENS "THE GOLDEN SNARE"

James Oliver Curwood's absorbing North Country story, "The Golden Snare," with a splendid cast headed by Lewis S. Stone and Ruth Renick, will be the feature film offering at the Arcade Theatre today continuing for three days.

This production was made under the direction of David Hartford for release by Associated First National Pictures. Many of the scenes were filmed in some of the most picturesque locations of the Canadian Northwest, and the spirit of this gripping Curwood tale of a manhunt in the frozen wilds and the finding thereof of a fair-haired beauty is said to have been well caught.

In the supporting cast are Wallace Beery, Melbourne MacDowell, Wellington Payton, Francis MacDonald and Baby Esther Scott.

"THE GOOD BAD WIFE" SHOWING AT SHERIDAN'S

When a talk of life is realistically portrayed on the screen, as it is in "The Good Bad Wife," one is compelled to ask the name and origin of its director. In the present case we find it is not that of a well-known motion picture figure, but of a woman whose name has not yet been heretofore identified with the screen. Certain it is however, that it is destined to continue its association with the silent drama, for the mastery, skill and knowledge of entertainment values indicated in "The Good Bad Wife" are an augury of better things to come from the hand and mind of this unknown directorial genius, Vera McCord.

While the woman responsible for the creation of this bewitchingly human six-reel document is presently unknown to motion picture audiences, yet she is very well known to the public of the legitimate stage, as she has successfully appeared as leading support for some of the foremost male stars both in New York and London, notably E. H. Sothern, and Mr. Beerbaum Tree.

Mrs. McCord attacked the making of picture productions in a most careful and painstaking manner devoting nearly two years to the study of studio and camera work before embarking into the field of production as an independent producer and director.

The photoplay has been charmingly developed to appeal to both sexes of every age, and provides a photoplay that varies from humor to pathos and from tragedy to comedy with the practiced and inspired touch of genius.

ART EXHIBIT IS POSTPONED

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—Announcement has been made that it has been decided to postpone until the spring of 1923 the exhibition of American art in Paris which was first planned to be held next spring. The French government has set aside for the exhibition the building known as the Jeu de Paume in the Tuilleries Gardens.

It will be given under the auspices of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and under the direction of Monsieur Benedite, the Director of the Luxembourg Museum.

The permanent American committee appointed by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, is composed of Messrs. William Emerson of Boston, Paul Cret of Philadelphia, Charles Bulfinch and Julian Clarence Levi of New York.

Mr. Levi says the scope of the exhibit will be very comprehensive as the French government wishes to have a representative exhibition of all American art activities, not only in the fine arts, but in the decorative and applied arts as well.
