CARNIVAL IS TO BE SOON

(By Associated Press) URBANA, Ill., Feb. 21.—The fifth annual Hunt relay carnival, to be held here March 4, boasts an entry list of 28 teams. The team that will represent the University of Kansas looms to be one of the best in the west, being composed of such brilliant cinder athletes as Bradley, the all-around expert; Sandefur, the weight specialist; Paul O'Leary, winner of the quarter mile in the Missouri Valley conference meet last year; Kearney, sophomore hurdler and sprinter of much promise; Woesteimeyer, a ten second man in the century and Griffin, running mate of O'Leary in the 440.

NEW RACING AUTOMOBILES

(By Associated Press) SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—Two racing automobiles are being made here by Ralph de Palma, noted Italian speed driver, who has decided to abandon the car he has driven for years and to manufacture a machine of his own design. De Palma will drive one of the new cars and probably his brother John will drive the other. The machines will be entered in a big race on the Greater San Francisco Speedway at San Carlos Easter Sunday. On May 20 he will put them in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis.

BOY SCOUTS PLAN LODGE IN THE WOODS

"A Scout is Careful," one of the primary boy scout laws deals better with this phase than any of the other nine. Thorough drilling and actual experience is given to every scout and after a course, such as above, is completed the scout is capable of maintaining a camp without the slightest danger of starting a forest fire and they are also well equipped with knowledge as to the manner for putting out and checking forest fires. Last year, at the summer outing held on the Big Minam, Forest Ranger Paul Ellis spent a day with the boys giving them practical illustrations as to the causes and preventions of forest fires. No other organization is welcomed more by rangers than boy scouts, because they know that in them they have able allies in case of fire and also know that the scouts will do all within their power to aid in the prevention of this greatest menace to our national forests.

The local boy scouts are now fully under way in their work and are a first class organization in every respect. Many of them are working to secure merit badges and the highest share of them are second and first class scouts. The movement started in the winter of 1920-21 with one troop, the present Troop 1, and since then it has grown to two troops, and the M. I. A., in endeavoring to form the nucleus of another troop, will probably succeed. The organization has a regular charter, its council, scout commissioner and other officials.

Since the troop was organized two long trips have been taken and a large number of shorter hikes overnight and day hikes. The first hike was taken in the winter that they organized and the boys tramped to Mountain Home and spent the day there. On July 4 they went to Lead Canyon and reported a fine time. Then several other short hikes were successfully accomplished.

Year's Big Trip. The big trip of the year was a two-weeks' outing on the Big Minam river. An advance guard of four left La Grande two days before the main group and prepared the camp and made themselves acquainted with the conditions.

At this time nineteen scouts and three officials made the trip. The two weeks were spent in fishing, hiking, practical work in woodcraft, outdoor athletic activities, such as baseball, track work, etc., and in the studying of plant and animal life. The boys were lucky enough to catch glimpses of deer and also saw a bear.

The most important hike made while on the outing was to Lake Long and Lake Steamboat about twelve miles from the camp.

Joined by Wallawa. About the middle of their stay the Wallawa Boy Scouts, who were taking an extensive hike through the country in that section, joined the La Grande and spent a day and night with them. A big council was held that night and friendly relations between the two troops was firmly established. The boys returned to La Grande, on August 20 and were physically and mentally better citizens upon their return.

The local scouts have a basketball team that is playing a regular schedule and they have competitive athletics between the various patrols. The scouts broke even with Cove, last to 1922 and have games with Tiptop and —not the Character of the Men in the Clothes but the Character of the Clothes Themselves!

In Men's Clothes

A DIFFERENCE

THERE is a wide difference in what you get for what you pay when it comes to buying clothing. There are the final touches of finishing which mean so much both to the appearance and the wearing service; there are the carefully inspected woolen fabrics and materials which go into the making that add to the ultimate satisfaction you experience; then there is the skilled workmanship which assures actual fitting garments—garments which properly shape themselves to the figure, giving the lines of custom tailoring.

These are the elements entering into clothing that give a well-defined character of superiority—which make them stand out so prominently when compared with ordinary makes—and it is these elements of character that distinguish the J. C. Penney Company clothing from all others.

SUMMER WORK IN UNIVERSITY

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Feb. 21.—Summer work on the campus of the University of Oregon in 1922 will be much like the instruction given in the other terms of the college year, according to Collin V. Dymond, director. He adds that the only differences will be that the offerings of the summer term will be somewhat restricted and specialized and that more attention will be given proportionately to the needs of advanced students. Some elementary courses will be offered but the emphasis will be upon those courses in which the libraries and laboratories on the campus can be used to best advantage by mature and experienced students.

back to the summer term as head of the education work, assisted by Assistant Superintendent Thomas R. Cole, of Seattle. Professor Hart Douglas and two other instructors. Ernest Bates, who will head the department of English, has called Dr. Otis Richardson of the University of Idaho to give courses in English literature. Dr. Samuel B. Harding comes from the University of Minnesota to teach two courses in history. Dan E. Clark, formerly of the University of Iowa, will offer work in history. Ben H. Williams, of the University of Pennsylvania, will teach political science. The science work will be strong, numbering among its faculty Professors E. S. Conklin, A. E. Caswell, E. E. DeGou, W. E. Milne and E. L. Packard. Special plans are being made for the work in economics, physical education, sociology, library methods, commercial and other customary and popular subjects of the summer term.

Early last fall plans were made to present a drama, "The Upper Trail" and action was taken immediately. The play was presented a short time ago and met with success. It was taken to Cove the week following and although not as large a financial success as when presented here it did much to foster the relations between the Cove and La Grande scouts and also to further interest in scout work in general.

One of the scout laws is "Do a Kind Deed Every Day," and here are examples of the aid the scouts have given: Last fall they were practicing football and the home of I. R. Keefe, on X avenue, caught fire. They rushed to the scene, arriving before the fire department, which had been delayed owing to the muddy streets, and succeeded in saving the biggest share of the furniture and also gave first aid to a girl who had fainted. Then, when the Ellison-White Chautauqua was here last summer, scouts were stationed at the park at all times to aid in whatever manner they could. They acted as ushers and were a great help to the Chautauqua and the town people also.

Aided in Clean-up. Another big work successfully accomplished by the local scouts was the clean-up week they observed last spring. Two scouts were stationed in each district in La Grande and they supervised the cleaning up of all rubbish and aided materially in making the city brighter and cleaner looking. They observed Anniversary Week last February, giving scouting demonstrations throughout the week and doing some splendid work in their scout craft in addition.

During the fall fruit-gathering contest the scouts organized and won the prize offered by Judge Crawford. Over five hundred boxes of apples were harvested, and that was only one item. The local scouts, since first organized, have done splendid work in practically every line they have attempted and prove that they are one of the finest organizations in the state.
