GO-OPERATIVE EXECUTIVE IS ON PROGRAM

later. He announced that another distribution will be made before tax-paying time. Another tentative settlement will be made about July 1 and because there will remain some wheat to be marketed during June a final settlement will be made after that date. The growers receive interest on all deferred payments offsetting any interest they may have to pay to finance themselves while waiting for their deferred payments.

The average price obtained for wheat so far is $1.15, coast basis, Mr. Ludwick declared. On all wheat sold at this time the average is being raised, and if the market continues at the present level material increases will be made before final settlement is made.

The sales organization of the association expects to sell 12 million bushels of wheat this year. Considerable of the wheat sold has been sold for export trade. An expert grain man is the European agent and the association finds it as easy to sell in foreign lands as in this country.

The speaker announced that on February 28 A. R. Shumway, president of the association, and representatives of other similar organizations in other states, will hold a conference in Denver, at which time plans for consolidating the export and statistical departments to eliminate as far as possible competition will be discussed.

One of the interesting features pointed out by Mr. Ludwick was the fact that the total administrative expenses to February 1 had been only 8 cents per bushel. For the entire year he estimated them at 13 cents per bushel and the sales expenses are expected to be another cent per bushel. This compares very favorably with private marketing organizations which must figure several times that amount for operation.

"The conservative operation of the association's finances has resulted in praise from bankers who were skeptical at first regarding the association's making good," he said. "As an example of how we operate, say we get 40 cars of wheat on track in Portland in a day. Perhaps ten cars will grade exceptionally good and these will sell at a premium to the milling trade. Twenty cars will be standard and these we apply on contracts and the other ten cars are a bit below standard and these we blend and dispose without taking the trade discount. The premiums accruing to the association offset the overhead expense in large measure."

"I want particularly to call your attention to our desire to have freight rates lowered. Recently we bought wheat here and sent it to Liverpool. We were able to secure what I believe was the cheapest charter on the coast this year. It cost us as much to send the grain from this city to Portland as from Portland to Liverpool."

Speakers this morning were Ira N. Gabrielson, assistant biologist of the U. S. Biological Survey, and D. E. Stephens, superintendent of a branch experimental station at Moro. J. E. Reynolds acted as chairman.

"Five million dollars annually is lost in Oregon from destruction of crops by rodents," Mr. Gabrielson said in his address on "How to Control the Rodent Pest." He declared that from three to 25 per cent of the crops were annually lost through the depredations of these small marauders.

Clean-Up Urged.
"Get together and clean them up," was the advice of the speaker. He emphasized the importance of co-operation in the work of pest eradication, as he explained that the great difficulty in the past, and even at the present, is to get farmers who will work together at this task. The other great difficulty is to get farmers to keep on the job from year to year, the tendency being to give up the work following a big campaign of one year.

The speaker pointed out that if a rodent pest of current, rabbit, etc., etc. destroyed 10 and 20 per cent of any locality and the work dropped the increase would be so rapid that within three years the pest would be as bad as ever. "The time to jump on them is when you have them down," he advised. "It is better to kill one rabbit when you have only a dozen on the land, than 5000 when you have 10,000." He gave numerous examples of places where this lesson had been learned only after the farmer had paid dearly for the experience.

Mr. Gabrielson pointed to Jackson county as the one showing greatest results, the reason for this being that the farmer there carries with him always poison to be put out whenever and wherever he discovers that the rodents are at work. Forest Rangers have been enlisted by the government; stations throughout the county to give information concerning breeding colonies found in the hills. These colonies are then destroyed and every effort is made to keep the mountains and hills adjoining the farm lands as free of pests as possible.

Good Results.
The speaker described in detail some of the poisons now being used with good results, all of which are obtainable through the county agent. He closed his remarks with a warning concerning the gopher pest that is today not very troublesome in this county, but which, if precautions are not taken, will be one of the worst pests five years from now. He gave instances where the so-called winter-killed crops have in reality been the result of the work of gophers working underground without attracting much attention.

Mr. Stephen took up the subject of increasing the profits of wheat farming by raising higher yields per acre. This could be done, he pointed out, by better choice of variety of wheat grown. "There are today in Oregon 60 varieties of wheat," he said, "but the farmer would be better off if there were about 50 less." His advice to the Union county farmer was to grow winter wheats more than spring wheat as is done at the present time. Speaking of hybrid 128 winter wheat, he said, "I confidently believe that in comparison with the forty fold you are now using, hybrid 128 will give you much better results, with the exception of irrigated land." This wheat is highly recommended by Washington State College and is proving one of the best varieties in Umatilla and Sherman counties. He advocated Hard Federation as a spring wheat that would undoubtedly prove of high yielding value in this county, evening preference to Red Chaff Club that is now so largely grown.

The speaker dwelt in detail on some of the determining factors in choice of variety, such factors as the time of sowing, method of handling the soil, rainfall and temperature and also explained, by giving statistics of different farmers, that high yield per acre increased the profit by lowering the cost of production per bushel.

charged beyond recognition. But before the night had passed 35 bodies had been removed, accounting for the last of those who were known to have taken flight on the fatal voyage.

Accounts of survivors and of eye witnesses as to what had happened appeared to agree. Tuesday night that the huge kite-like structure of the stern rudder, itself as large as a bombing plane, had slipped to one side as the Roma drove along a thousand feet above the army base.
