Plan of Buying Suggested.
 Bruce Dennis claimed that the city and county could not fall out over this matter and that there was no disposition to do so; that the county court and city commission are composed of men elected by the voters and they represent the different units. It was therefore proper to leave this matter up to these two boards to settle it with any suggestion which the Ad club might have to offer for their consideration.

As to financing the court house purchase he stated that it was plain that the city could not get from under the court house for the county is not prepared to buy, cannot vote a bond issue and cannot enter into a purchase contract which will throw the indebtedness over the six per cent limitation. It was the view expressed that the city must refund the bonds on the court house which fall due in two years into long time payments and stay under the load with the county paying into the city like payments indicated by the refunding bond issue.

How Can Court House Be Purchased Is Main Question and at the end of the bond payments the court house would become the property of the county. This, it was stated, could be done if the refunding bonds were spread over a sufficient length of time without raising taxes or voting bonds. The revenue would be received from cuts in present expenses and abolishing departments that could be abolished.

Judge Crawford raised the same constitutional objection to this, but Judge Knowles was inclined to view the legal point differently. Finally Judge Crawford agreed that such a plan might be worked out.

Get-Together Is Certain.
 There will be no court house row; there will be no pulling apart when the way is pointed out how the deal can be made, judging from the frame of mind of all the men who attended the meeting today.

The county court and the city commission will meet Wednesday night for further consideration of the problem.

ANCIENT NOTE MAY BE PAID

(By Associated Press)
 BERKELEY, Cal., Mar. 7.—An old promissory note, given by the commonwealth of Massachusetts to Samuel T. Mather in 1794 for $63.62 and five per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, may bring between $30,000 and $40,000 to Mather's great-great-grandchildren, Mrs. Aimyra Gaylord Conner, a young kindergarten teacher of Berkeley.

While in the east last summer attending her mother's funeral, Mrs. Conner found the note unpaid, in an old family trunk, which had been given her years ago for her dolls' clothes.

Mrs. Conner took the note to an attorney who advised her that payment could not be made without the passage by the Massachusetts legislature of a special act, for in 1821 the legislature passed a bill calling for payment of all such notes and providing that interest would not be paid after a reasonable time was given for presentation.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature, Mrs. Conner has been advised, calling for payment of the note, and she has been notified to be ready to go east soon to attend a hearing on the matter. It is thought that possibly the legislature will authorize payment as the note represents a moral debt, if not a legal one.
