The Screen

EVERY MERIT IN "EVERYTHING FOR SALE"

Thrills, a clever story and excellent emotional acting are well-combined in "Everything For Sale" now at the Arcade Theatre.

Perhaps the most interesting feature, however, is the appearance of May McAvoy in the stellar role. This winsome little player's unusual and appealing personality scored such a great hit in "Sentimental Tommy" and "A Private Scandal" that picture "fans" have been looking forward with interest to her next appearance.

In "Everything For Sale," she portrays the reactions of a girl just home from finishing school, who finds that the fashionable ideal is a wealthy marriage, and that love is for sale like all other commodities.

The dramatic suspense of the play is well-aided by thrilling scenes representing the wreck of a rowboat and the tossing of the leading man against the rocks—and the struggles of Miss McAvoy against the fumes of gas in a room where she is accidentally imprisoned.

AT SHERRY'S TODAY AND TOMORROW. When P. T. Barnum made the statement "There's a fool born every minute," he uttered one of the quaintest epigrams of all time. The famous showman, whose success was due to his uncanny understanding of the human psychology, spoke what is as true today as it was when he ruled the circus world.

In his latest Paramount starring vehicle, "One a Minute," which will be presented at the Sherry Theatre beginning today, Douglas MacLean has utilized public gullibility as the theme for one of the most delightful and sparkling comedies of his career.

Jimmy Knight, the star role assumed by MacLean, returns to his home town to run an old-fashioned drug store bequeathed him by his father.

Knowing nothing of the drug business, and threatened by extinction by more up-to-date rivals, Jimmy manufactures a panacea for all ills, supposedly discovered by Jimmy's father. The drug contained four common drugs and a mysterious fifth ingredient which Jimmy claims is the secret to the cure's potency.

The rival drug concern has the drug analyzed and discovers but four ingredients. The fifth, and most important one, they were unable to determine. Jimmy is arrested for violation of the pure food and drug act. Then follows incident after incident filled with quaint comedy.

An excellent company appears in support of the star, including Marian DeBeek, Victor Patel, Frances Raymond and Graham Pettie. Also a comedy, "One Big Night."
