WHAT IS THE BIGGEST BLOT ON OUR AMERICAN LIFE OF TODAY?

If you were asked "What is the biggest blot on our American life of today?" what would your answer be?

In a vague sort of way you have always told yourself that you knew, but the chances are that you have never given the subject serious thought.

In recent years calamity and turmoil have been hovering about this world of ours. The great world war, prohibition, high prices on absolute necessities of life, money shortage and other events have filled the daily newspapers of the country for some time.

Back of all this, there is some foundation of events. Each incident has had its effects on the other. There has been a "BLOT" on the universe in this generation—the one that you and I, all of us, live in. What is it? "What is the biggest BLOT on our American life of today?"

"The Blot," which is showing at the Arcade Theatre, will answer this question—"What is the biggest BLOT on our American life of today?"

Lois Weber, noted for her handling of timely incidents, has interwoven this question in her great photo-drama. She has played it up with keen human interest that affords a real heart-throb in each reel.

It is up to you and you and you to see "The Blot." It will answer a question that has been asked daily.

"The Blot" will deliver a message that is vital and important, one that will help the children of this and future generations. It will possibly relieve a great poverty that has been inflicted by the American people upon a group of necessary individuals that have made supreme sacrifices in order that our children should not be neglected.

AT SHERRY'S.

The fact that you can never tell just what is going to happen, whether when you are down to your last son and the clouds hang over your head your luck may not change, or vice versa, whether calamity may not be around the corner at the heyday of prosperity was used as the foundation of a fascinating picture, "Life's Darkest Hour," starring Viola Dana.

The original plot of the picture came from Christine Jones Slade's Saturday Evening Post story, "Care-takers Within," which took the readers of this weekly by storm. Immediately upon its publication, officials of Metro saw the tremendous possibility inherent in it for a gloriously thrilling picture that would contain every element necessary for giving entertainment. The result is "Life's Darkest Hour," a Dallas Fitzgerald production, adapted by Molly Parro and Arthur D. Ripley. It was photographed by John Arnold and A. F. Mantz executed the art settings. For her supporting cast Miss Dana has Garret Hughes, Eva Gordon, Kathleen O'Connor and Mark Fenton. Also showing "Fighting Fate."
