La Grande, Oregon

Society

Now and then some outstanding attraction comes to La Grande in a way few other Eastern Oregon towns can lay claim to. When an artist of world renown, such as Alberto Salvi, the harpist, comes it naturally enough stirs up a great deal of interest. So much has been said in the daily press and in musical magazines about this Italian that he is known better than any other artist of the age. He won the world competition at San Francisco's fair against a great field of harpist stars, and he is better today than ever. Not alone is harp music distinctive and enjoyable to the most unschooled ear, but the player himself becomes an object of interest when it is known that his feet operate as swiftly as do his hands in hitting sharp and flat notes. The concert will be held Friday evening at the L. D. S. Tabernacle.

A good crowd was in attendance and the initiation was held at the close of the regular business meeting. Those initiated enjoyed themselves almost as much as did the spectators and the evening was very successfully spent.

On March 24th La Grande is going to hear home talent in an attraction at the high school that will be both novel and really worth while. E. D. Towler has been named chairman of a committee on program under direction of the lyceum committee and will be ready to announce the details within a few days.
