MILLAGE LEVY HAS BUT FEW SUPPORTERS

legislative committee of the convention, are:

Assets at full cash value, all property.

Place a time limit on soldiers' educational bill at six years from date of its adoption.

Application for a soldiers' bonus must be filed within four years of adoption of the act.

Bar the legislature from referring anything to the people but constitutional amendments.

Cabinet Form.

Creation of cabinet form of government, to be appointed by governor, whose heads can be removed by the governor or recalled by the people.

Prohibit use of public funds for propaganda.

"Give the committee a chance, when the delegates go home and sober up and reconsider some of the things done today," shouted N. G. Heddin.

Trouble started at 9 o'clock when the tax-reduction committee brought in two reports. The split in the committee came over the proposal to repeal the millage for the higher educational institutions. The committee stood 11 for repeal and 7 against. The majority report was signed by H. F. Warren of Linn, Seymour Jones of Marion, F. S. Meyers of Multnomah, A. A. Inlah of Tillamook, E. A. Willis of Union, R. V. Stockton of Yamhill, W. H. Strayer of Baker, S. M. Benedict of Benton, R. E. Cherrich of Clackamas, C. W. Barr of Clatsop and A. H. Tarbell of Columbia.

The minority report was signed by C. H. Barley of Douglas, A. D. Leedy of Grant, L. B. Gibson of Hood River, E. R. Hampton of Umatilla, Chester Bridges of Washington, G. A. Mansfield of Jackson and F. L. Chambers of Lane.

Pierce as Defender.

A motion was made to substitute the minority for the majority report and the floodgates of oratory were thrown open wide. Attacks on the millage were made by B. Y. Rowe, Seymour Jones, G. O. Holman, E. Hofer, J. B. Ziegler, John U. Smith, S. S. Endicott, Robert Schubel and others. The main defender of the millage was Walter M. Pierce, delegate and regent of the college, who was granted 20 minutes for his argument when the time limit had been set at five minutes; A. D. Leedy, Thomas Hayes, Homer Mason and a few more championed the millage. When the convention went on record against the millage, Mr. Mason, in an outburst of indignation, left the hall with the Hood River delegation, announcing he would fight the anti-millage crowd on the stump.

The vote showed that the motion to substitute the minority report for the majority failed by 38 to 45. On motion to adopt the majority report recommendation to repeal the millage the vote was 48 for and 38 against.

By counties the vote follows, the yeas being in favor of repeal and the noes against cutting off the millage: Baker, 5 yes, 3 no; Benton, 1 yes, 2 no; Clackamas, 3 yes, 3 no; Clatsop, 1 yes; Douglas, 2 no; Grant, 2 no; Hood River, 3 no; Jackson, 1 no; Josephine, 1 no; Lane, 8 no; Linn, 2 yes, 2 no; Marion, 8 yes, 1 no; Multnomah, 9 yes; Umatilla, 6 no; Union, 2 yes, 4 no; Wasco, 2 no; Washington, 4 yes; Yamhill, 6 yes.

Order Absent.

Absence of order, with resultant noise and confusion, the almost total disregard for the presiding officer in taking the floor and in asking questions, was an outstanding characteristic of the unbossed and untrammeled league. Motions, amendments, points of order, "I've got the floor," "Sit down," "What are we voting on?" filled the air until ever and anon Seymour Jones, having been speaker in the legislature and therefore a parliamentarian, would raise his voice and inquire: "Just a moment. Let's see where we stand." A tangle would be straightened out for a moment and them something else would happen.

In the midst of the debate on the millage, a letter was received from the central labor council. This spoke of "certain associations and individuals who have taken upon themselves" the proposal to cut salaries until heads of the higher educational institutions are "paid less than a skilled mechanic," and "deplored hasty and inconsiderate action." The letter was filed without a word.

Somewhere along in the proceedings a motion was made that instead of repealing the millage, the institutions be directed to live within the millage and not ask for other assistance from the legislature for extension or other work. This motion was lost in the shuffle.
