es and improved working conditions. But victory has not always been theirs, though the big strike settlements have favored them. The operators' successes, however, include wage reductions, denial of increased wages, changed working conditions, and the crushing of two unions—the first national organization of miners, founded in 1860, which perished in a series of strikes at the close of the civil war, and the Workmen's Benevolent Association, an organization of anthracite workers, which was demoralized in 1875 after 15 years' existence.

The first coal strike in the United States occurred in 1849 in the Pennsylvania anthracite field when a British miner, named Bates, organized a local union and sought to increase wages and better working conditions. His strike failed and Bates was forced to leave the field and for eleven years the workers made no further attempt at organization. Since Bates' day, many leaders have been developed among the workers and strikes of various sorts for varied purposes have been carried on, the early fight being largely centered to small areas, occasionally including an entire state coal field.

University Orchestra Here Today

rank, having appeared in Germany, England, and parts of the United States on tours following his training in Germany before the war. Alberta Potter, violin soloist, played before the Ad Club luncheon at noon today, and the whole orchestra and the University troubadours played before a special high school assembly this afternoon. The patronesses for the concert and dance this evening are Mesdames Fred Schilke, Earl Stoddard, George Birnie, A. W. Nelson, Lea Warnick, H. M. Bay, and Anna Landsbury Beck. The program, the best of the orchestra has ever given, is made up of material which has enough contrast to keep the audience interested from beginning to end. They are also arranged in such a way that the program may move along as rapidly as possible so that there are no tiresome waits, according to the management. The concert begins at 8:15 sharp in order that the ance may begin promptly at ten o'clock.

Legion Drive Is Progressing Well

The drive to secure filled out questionnaires from every ex-service man in La Grande and vicinity is going very well. Reports from over 150 ex-service men have been turned in and only a small per cent of them have yet been canvassed. Ralph Huron is in charge of the house to house canvass and has six other men under his supervision. They are making a thorough canvass of the entire city and are having success with all whom they interview. Many of the questionnaires were left in the ex-service men's homes and it is to their own advantage to have them filled out, according to local Legion authorities, as the questionnaires will be filed with the local and state orders both. Questionnaires are also on hand at W. H. Bohnenkamp & Co., with Otis Palmer, Fred Read, Roy Currey, at the Elk's Club or from any of the American Legion officers.

NEW BULLETIN OUT.
 Union county stockmen and farmers who have to put livestock on ranges that carry stock-poisoning plants can now get an experiment station bulletin on methods of preventing or reducing losses of animals by range poisoning. The report was written by William E. Lawrence, who has visited most of the districts of the state where these poisonous plants abound, to study the plants and learn from stockmen the best practices in avoiding losses. The report tells the kinds of plants, where found, how and when they are most poisonous, how to avert or lessen losses, conditions of poison-
