MARIE PROVOST FEATURE. VAUDEVILLE AT ARCADE

Don't carry a big cane with a fancy knob on it. It looks suspicious, or at least it will after "The Dangerous Little Demon," the Universal romance of love and prohibition at the Arcade Theatre tonight only. It is soap. In his role in support of Marie Provost, Anderson Smith impersonates a gentleman who isn't satisfied with the capacity of his hip pockets. He has to have a hollow cane filled with the best brand. On top of that, he makes the poor little heroine rob her father's private stock, which gives her a rating slightly above Jinx, the butler.

In addition to this snappy film feature four acts of vaudeville will also be presented.

"THE SHEIK" COMING
George Melford's superb picturization of E. M. Hull's famous novel, "The Sheik," which is the literary sensation of the year, will be seen at the Arcade Theatre next Thursday, for a three-day run. Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, and Rudolph Valentino, who made such a hit in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," are the featured players.

AT SHERIDAN'S LAST TIME TODAY
Diving 25 feet or more into icy water at Mammoth, California, fully dressed in a heavy fringed buckskin suit, was one of the feats accomplished by Jack Holt, in his first Paramount star picture.

The scene shows a rescuer, where-in Holt plays Francis McDonald safely ashore, the latter having taken a backward dive from the side of the rocky cliff, a distance of 15 feet.

The water was extremely cold. As soon as the scene was made the actors hastened to the fire kindled for the purpose of drying them out. But the inexperienced 'fireman' built his fire on top of the cliff where the wind blew from all four quarters at once, seemingly, and the drenched star and his companions in misery were pretty well chilled before they were dried out.

Joseph Henabery directed the picture, which Jack Cunningham adapted from the play by George Broadhurst and the book "Conjuror's House," by Stewart Edward White.

JUGO-SLAVIA WANTS HELP

(By Associated Press)
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Apr. 3.—Jugoslavia is looking to the United States in the hope of obtaining aid in solving her grave financial and economic problems. The little Slav state believes it cannot overcome them without foreign assistance. Its obligations amount to nearly 1,000,000,000 including an indebtedness of more than 400,000,000 to the United States and twice that sum to England.

The dinar, the country's unit of currency, (normally worth about 19 cents) has reached the pitiful exchange of a cent and a quarter. The amount of outstanding paper money is nearly 5,000,000,000 of dinars. Of this sum only 400,000,000 dinars is covered by gold reserve or securities. The state's indebtedness to the National bank is 4,000,000,000 dinars.

The budget for the new year has reached the staggering total of 6,000,000,000 dinars. This is 30 times greater than previous budgets. More than a third of this is for military and defense purposes. The national revenue is much below the total of the budget.

The government is faced with tremendous problems of reconstruction which are believed to be impossible to complete without loans from abroad.

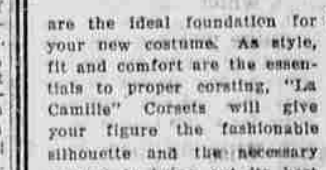

Throughout the southern part of the kingdom most of the instruments of industry are either destroyed or are seriously insufficient. Railroads are out of order or function very poorly.

That the government does not despair of the outlook is shown by an optimistic statement of the minister of finance to parliament, in which he said: "Our state possesses within its frontiers all the elements necessary for great prosperity and the means of securing a more rapid restoration than any other country which may have suffered from the same losses. Our coal, our iron and other mineral products; our varied agricultural production; our great water power, exhaustless forests, immense river traffic, our contact with the great industrial centers of Central Europe and the apportionment of property among the people—all of these conditions, I am sure, will contribute to the rapid restoration of our kingdom. There is no economic reason why we should despair of our future."

The Land of Blades.
Japan is called "the land of blades" by its own people, some of the older scholars having declared that the first sword was invented by the same god who invented poetry. A maker of swords in Japan was ever highly honored among his fellow mechanics. An unusually skillful and artistic smith sometimes was recipient of high military rank, a yearly pension, or was even raised to the lordship of the province in which he dwelt.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.
"I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different medicines. I am nearly fifty-one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to, now," writes Geo. W. Emery, Rock Mills, Ala. These tablets contain no poison but strengthen the stomach and enable it to digest the food naturally.—adv.
