LAST DAY AT SHERRY'S 'FOURTEENTH LOVER'—VIOLA DANA'S BEST.

Nobody on the screen can play a certain type of role better than little Viola Dana, the Metro star. Given her proper opportunity as a reckless devil-may-care, vivacious flapper, eager to seize life as a dazzling adventure, bubblingly intent upon extracting the quintessence of excitement from it, yet tenderly appreciative of real human values, and Viola Dana comes through the part with a joyous abandon that brooks no rivalry. She adds just the right touch of sentiment that carries with it a little heart-tug, but she is never sentimental, never sugary. There is too much tingling gaiety in her personality for that.

Not often does she have a role that gives her such a dazzling opportunity as she finds in her latest Metro picture, 'The Fourteenth Lover,' which was seen yesterday at the Sherry Theatre.

SHOWS PICTURE IN DEATH HOUSE OF SING SING.

A dozen condemned men enjoy the privilege of seeing the first motion picture ever exhibited in Sing Sing's death house through the kindness of Thomas Meighan, Paramount star, and his director, Tom Forman, who recently presented a projection machine to the prison. Interiors of the prison also shown in Mr. Meighan's new picture, 'The City of Silent Men,' which will be shown at the Arcade Theatre today and Saturday.

As the deathhouse is small, the machine had to be placed twelve feet from the screen. The reels were run off twice so that the twelve men could see them through the steel-barred doors of their cells. A bed sheet, used as a screen was stretched at the west end of the short corridor which has a row of cells on each side. When the reels were run off the sheet was shifted to the east side and the picture repeated.

Mr. Meighan recently staged an escape scene at Sing Sing for his latest Paramount picture, 'The City of Silent Men,' and he was so struck with the utter dreariness of the life of the inmates of the deathhouse that he asked Warden Lawes if a motion picture projection machine could be used there. The Warden said the men might see motion pictures occasionally and the projection machine was ordered. It arrived in time to add a little mirth to the last Christmas many of the condemned men enjoyed.

CITY OFFICERS MAKING BEER

(By Associated Press) OMAHA, Neb., Apr. 21.—They were making beer Wednesday at the Omaha city hall.

By Friday the first brew will be bottled. Three days later the beverage will be ready for a "kick" if any. It contains, Prof. C. F. Crowley, city chemist, is brewmaster and is to make the test assisted possibly by James H. Haulley, former federal prohibition director.

Dave Berenstein and Max Price, who conduct a grocery here, were arrested several days ago by federal agents and a quantity of malt and hops prominently displayed in their store was seized. The officers also confiscated a recipe posted in a conspicuous place near the malt and hops, and it is this formula which the city chemist is following in his brewing operations.
