AT SHERRY'S LAST DAY—"A PRINCE THERE WAS."

When picture fans see the New York street scenes in Thomas Meighan's new Paramount picture, "A Prince There Was," at the Sherry Theatre today, they will doubtless marvel at the fact that these were made on the Paramount studio lot, three thousand miles from the big Metropolis.

As only a few scenes were needed, it was inexpedient to take the company across the continent for this purpose and a replica of the location required was constructed by the technical wizards at the studio.

The scene represents an intersection of two streets, in the vicinity of Fifty-seventh street and Sixth Avenue and includes the exterior of the city boarding house where the heroine resides. An elevated railway was constructed along one of the streets, crossing diagonally across the camera range. A row of these boarding houses fronted one side of one street and on the other was a large brick building. Several hundred persons of various types and all varieties of automobiles, trucks and other vehicles were in action and gave the effect of a busy traffic scene in the big city.

An immense amount of detail had to be perfected in staging such a scene. Auto license plates had to be duplicates of those used in New York, the types of people had to be selected with care, and the entire scene was given a smoke, dingy, dusty appearance when the property man lighted a smoke pot and smoked up the atmosphere.

The new picture is a film version by Waldemar Young of George M. Cohan's dramatic success and was screened under the direction of Tom Forman. Mildred Harris, Charlotte Jackson, Guy Oliver, Nigel Barrie, Sylvia Ashton, Fred Huntly and Arthur Hull are in the cast.

POLA NEGRI IN PLAY OF ORIENTAL HAREMS

A romance of the harem! It is a phrase that kindles the imagination quickens the pulses and stirs that dormant longing to visit the Orient—the land of mysticism, love, and splendor. For in every man, there is a hidden desire for romance—and the East has long been fabled, and rightly so, for its romance.

This is the spirit of "One Arabian Night," which is to start a three day engagement at the Arcade Theatre on Thursday. The star of this production is Pola Negri, who leaps to international fame through her work in "Passion" and "Gypsy Blood."

The dancing girl, who is a member of a strolling group of players, captures the hearts of all who come into contact with her, regardless of rank or caste. Among her most persistent suitors is her master, a hunchback, but to the girl love is but a passing fancy, and in momentary whims she casts aside all of her numerous lovers.

One day they reach Bagdad, and there she meets the prince, the son of the sheik who rules all the land. For the first time in her life she feels the strange pangs of real love. But caste is everything in the East, and while the prince has no objections to clandestine meetings, the girl wants to be near him constantly, and is compelled to use strategy to gain admittance to the palace.

She dances before the sheik, bewitches him and becomes the favorite of the harem.

The prince comes to her in her bower, but they are surprised by the sheik.

Tragedy follows, for not even the son of the sheik can invade the sanctity of the harem with impunity. This is but part of the story of "One Arabian Night," a fascinating and interest-compelling production. Director Lubitch plays the part of the hunchback and proves that his genius is not confined to his directorial powers.

Thousands of persons take part in the picture, and an entire city was reproduced to give it a fitting background.

Is Your Car Short of Breath?
WHY MOTORS NEED NEW PISTONS
Piston wear occurs in every motor. And, with the wearing of pistons, the piston pins and rings also wear. No wear in motor, or car, makes itself so thoroughly evident as does the wear in these important parts. This is why replacement of pistons, piston pins and rings has become so universal—why so many good shops, and so many good mechanics, now make a specialty of regrinding cylinders and the replacement of pistons, piston pins and rings.
Despite the best lubrication possible, each of your pistons, as it travels up and down, wears against the cylinder walls. Have you ever thought how fast, and how far, these pistons travel in going back and forth, back and forth, up and down, millions of times through the cylinders? One "mathematical sharp" figure that in 10,000 miles of automobile travel a single piston in the average six-cylinder motor makes over 50,000,000 strokes up and down the cylinder walls. Therefore it is easy to understand why pistons, piston pins and piston rings wear—even with the best of lubrication.
