Society

What can properly be termed a "busy week" for society is recorded today for some of the events have been very largely attended and each has given forth great pleasure to La Grande's social circle. With the Neighborhood Club breakfast at the Country Club Tuesday morning society was set in motion to run the entire week through. The annual event of the Neighborhood Club was this year of exceptional importance for this year, aside from the delicious breakfast, the good things that accompany it, the pleasant social atmosphere of the occasion, the subject handled by several of the speakers was the "Old Oregon Trail"—a subject that is close to the American heart. Clinging closely to historical facts, the speakers portrayed the pioneer days in a way that was not only pleasant to hear but also passed the large gathering of ladies with features of Oregon's early settlements which otherwise would have gone unheralded. The work showed research, and it is to the credit of the Neighborhood Club ladies that they should not only have undertaken, but carried to successful conclusion.
