RAILROAD IS BEING SUED

One of the most important cases coming up in this session of the circuit court will be the case of A. W. Wall, administrator, vs. the O-W. P. & N. Co. The date of the trial is set for Monday morning, June 12, at 9:30 o'clock.

The plaintiff is suing the O-W. P. & N. Co. for $45,000 damages on account of the death of his brother, William Wall, who was killed October 23, at Hilgard.

According to the plaintiff, William Wall, while attempting to couple two engines at Hilgard preliminary to pulling a freight over the hill was crushed between the engines. The engine that advanced while he was making the couplings was driven by Walter Swartz and was apparently advancing without warning to the other engine. This engine was facing backwards and the result was that Wall was caught between the buffers of the two locomotives without a chance to escape.

The attorneys for the defendant, the O-W. P. & N. company, are S. C. Spencer, Crawford and Eakin and W. A. Robins, while attorneys for the plaintiff are Green and Hess and F. S. Ivanhoe.

BAKER WINS IN GAME SUNDAY

Local Team has a big run of Errors which Contributed Greatly to an 8 to 6 Defeat.

	W	L	Per
Cove	5	4	.562
La Grande	4	2	.666
Baker	4	2	.666
Elgin	3	3	.500
Union	1	5	.166
Haines	1	5	.166

Yesterday's Results.
At Haines: Union, 25; Haines, 6.
At Baker: Baker, 8; La Grande, 6.
At Cove: Cove won from Elgin—no official score received yet.

Due to ten errors made behind the splendid pitching of McGee, who let Baker down with 5 hits, Baker won from the locals yesterday at Baker 8 to 6. After having the game sailed down in the fifth inning, 6 to 2, the infield and outfield blow up and presented the Colts with the necessary runs needed to win. In one inning four runs were made on one single, none of them earned.

The game was called off for thirty minutes at the end of the fifth inning to await the passing of a thunder shower which muddled up the grounds in such a manner that a few of the errors made by the locals were excusable. It must be said of Baker, however, that they played nearly faultless ball in the last four innings.

Of the entire La Grande team four players played ball. Nothing on earth was wrong with the battery, the third sacker and the left fielder. As to the rest—it would take a whole dictionary to produce enough adjectives to describe their playing.

The team was weakened somewhat by the absence of Hector McLean, manager and captain, who was called to Portland by his daughter's illness, and also by Thelton having an injured arm that sent him through the game listless. Out of that, there is nothing more to say.

By presenting yesterday's game to the Colts, La Grande slipped into second place, after leading the league for five weeks. Cove is now on the top, as she defeated Elgin, while Union climbed out of the no-win column with a loud bang by mauling Haines 25 to 6. Union may make things interesting for the other teams the remainder of the year, as her nine is looking like a first class team at present. In order to win the pennant La Grande must win every game from now on—and that means defeating Cove and Baker once each, Elgin three times and Union twice. Three new first class players, Ben in the infield and one in the outfield, would put La Grande on the top of the league at the end of the year. But three weak spots in the local team means that there will not be games lost unless a change is made.

Next Sunday Elgin will meet La Grande here for the first time. Cove will travel to Haines and Baker will play at Union.
