INEXPRESSIBLE PEACE.—The peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.—Phil. 4:7.

ARBITRATION BECOMING A FACT.

A plan has been worked out by representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce for the use of arbitration by business men as the normal method of settling business disputes. Joseph H. DeFrees, retiring president of the chamber, in submitting the plan to the membership, remarks on its already wide use. He declares that commodities valued at billions of dollars are now bought and sold every year under contracts which provide that differences shall be arbitrated.

The arrangement proposed contemplates that settlement of local business controversies by existing commercial bodies in the localities concerned, and of disputes within an industry by trade associations, and settlement by the National Chamber of cases outside of trade jurisdiction.

The chamber has already set up machinery for handling disputes that can be adjusted simply by the informal use of good offices by business organizations. It is felt necessary to supplement this with machinery for formal arbitration for more difficult cases. The most serious cases of all will naturally be carried to the courts, but it is desired to reduce them to the lowest possible number.

This movement is in line with the common sense tendency in such matters. It is recognized that court procedure is, as a general thing, cumbersome, costly and dilatory. Private business is generally handled more efficiently than public business, and it seems especially likely to be so when private business uses its own direct methods to dispense justice.

Nations are coming to utilize arbitration on a big scale; it is obviously easier and simpler for private business to do the same thing. Eventually this simplified machinery of justice may be applied to the minor disputes of citizens by legal establishment, as a recognized part of the court machinery. An experiment of this very sort is now being made in New York.

Is there any discomfort comparable to that of a newspaper writer who has to get a certain amount of copy written by a given time, and whose typewriter goes just enough on the blink so that its eccentricities keep interrupting the flow of his narrative?

Somebody concerned in the Max Mathilde affair remarks that Mr. Oser has a fixed income of only $12,000 a year, "which would hardly be enough to support Miss McCormick." Maybe not. But it wasn't exactly in a prehistoric age that Mathilde's grandmother was living on less than that, and in a good deal of comfort and dignity, too.

When the golden age comes again it will be possible, as it used to be, to buy ripe strawberries and melons instead of green ones.

There is no mystery about good oil

It must be made from crudes carefully selected for their "oiliness" and stability. These crudes must be refined to preserve their original characteristics and to make them pure.

In selecting crudes for Zerolene the Standard Oil Company has the advantage of its own large production of practically every type of crude. The company is not compelled to use any particular crude because it happens to be the only one available.

Crudes selected for Zerolene are brought to our refineries in special pipe lines. They are refined by our own patented, high-vacuum process which preserves their "oiliness" and stability.

No other refiner on the Pacific Coast uses any form of vacuum distillation. No other refiner in the United States uses as high a vacuum as this company.

Purity Essential

Zerolene oils are pure. This company has always considered the removal of all detrimental properties and compounds as essential in making Zerolene.

Because of their "oiliness," stability and purity, Zerolene oils give perfect lubrication, and permit the development of the maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage of the car.

REFRIGERATOR WITHOUT ICE

O. A. C. Professor Tells Advantages and Economy of Doing Away With the Ice Man.

The iceless refrigerator is a wonderful economizer of food for the housewife who has no means of getting ice in the summer time, says Miss A. Grace Johnson, professor of household administration at the Oregon Agricultural college. It is very easy to make and the materials are so inexpensive that any Oregon housewife can have one.

A wooden frame any size desired is the foundation for the refrigerator. Three and one-half feet high with the other dimensions 12 by 15 inches is a convenient size. This frame may be painted white to make it more easily cleaned. Place movable shelves in the frame 12 to 16 inches apart. Sides of old boxes make just as serviceable shelves as new lumber does. The frame may be screened though this is not absolutely necessary.

Canton flannel, canvas, or burlap may be used to cover the frame. The wash materials are more sanitary than burlap because they can be removed and washed if put on in the right manner. Whatever the covering, it must be kept clean. The cover should be put on with automobile curtain hooks and eyes or thumb tacks so that it can be removed. The covering on the door should overlap the cracks to keep out the warm outside air and retain the cooled air.

The top of the refrigerator may be made either of wood or left open. If the top is solid, a pan filled with water may be placed on it. If it is left open, a pan will have to be obtained that will fit in the opening. Wicks of the same material as the covering rest in this pan and hang over the sides.

The water carried by the wicks and dripping down the sides moistens the covering and this draws the heat from the inside of the refrigerator thus keeping the air cool. A temperature of 50 degrees can be obtained on dry hot days. More water should be added during the First Tea Advertisement.

The first advertisement of a certain everyday article which ever appeared in the English Press was published in the Mercury Politicus on September 30th, 1658. It read:—"That excellent and by all Physicians approved China drink called by the Chinese Tea, by other Nations Tay alias Tee, is sold at the Sultanes Head Cophee House in Sweetings Rents, by the Royal Exchange, London." This advertisement, by its mention of "cophee house," that the sister stimulant had got a start of tea as a beverage.

A shallow pan may be placed under the refrigerator to catch the drip. The refrigerator must be kept outside in the shade where air can circulate around it.
