

OUT OUR WAY

BY WILLIAMS

THE TRAIN CREWS HAVE TO KEEP THEIR EYES ON THE OLD CROSSING WATCHMAN SINCE HE HAS BECOME SO INTERESTED IN THAT NEW SERIAL STORY IN THE PAPER

time here on business and visiting with friends. He is stopping at the Foley.

Holds Up Branch—

Owing to the fact that No. 6, express train, was nearly three hours late this morning, the branch line train pulled out about 10:00 o'clock. No reason was given for the lateness of the express train.

Here on Business—

L. C. Haynes of the Union Cheese Co. spent the day in La Grande trying to see that all the grocers of La Grande carry the best line of cheese.

Home from College—

William Carney, who has for the past three years been attending Mt. Angel college, arrived in La Grande last night on No. 18 to spend the summer vacation with friends and relatives.

Trip a Failure—

The proposed trip to Portland

Seattle, and other points in the northwest and coast, that Mr. and Mrs. Peter McDonald and daughter, Helen, and Miss Minna Ash were to take the latter part of last week. La Grande when the car broke down. The party returned to La Grande and will make the trip at a later date after the car has been repaired.

(By Associated Press) PORTLAND, June 13.—Cattle were weak with a distinction drawn between grass fed and hay fed cattle. Range steers were listed 50 cents below hay fed stock. Choice hay fed steers brought $8.25 to $8.75. Top hogs were 25 cents lower. Others were steady. Prime lights were $11.75 to $12. Sheep were steady and eggs and butter were easier with prices unchanged. Wheat was $1.10 to $1.15.

PLAN EXTENSION OF INSTRUCTION

(By Associated Press) KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 13.—A plan for universal public religious education, as "the only way to stop the paganism of America," will be reported to the International Sunday School Convention, which meets here June 21 to 27. Civilization without Christianity is described by delegates to the convention as "paganism," and results from education without religious instruction, in the opinion of the sponsors of the plan. They assert their belief that foreign elements in the population have taken advantage of the decay of home religious influences in America, and that the best Americanization is to be found in religious education. Christianity as "the fountain head of social progress" rather than a collection of dogmas is the ideal seen by the convention leaders. They urge Christian leadership in popular music and restoration of the drama as a religious art. Three days of the convention's session are to be devoted to consideration of the report of the committee on religious education. Among the signatories of the report expected to be present are Prof. Walter B. Athearn, director of the school of religious education of Boston University; Prof. Luther A. Weigle, chair of education, Yale University; Dr. W. E. Rafferty, editor in chief of the Baptist board of publication (North); Dr. Wade Crawford, associate editor of Sunday School publications, Methodist Episcopal church; Dr. John W. Shaeffer, superintendent of teacher training of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

The last day of the convention William Jennings Bryan, who was invited to speak to the convention twice, the first invitation being recalled and a second one issued later upon insistence by his friends, will speak and his address is expected to be the feature of the day.

Cleaning Paper. Grease or finger marks on books or papers may be removed by the following process: Make a thick paste by thoroughly grinding up a spoonful of magnesium carbonate with a sufficient quantity of benzol in a tin of mortar, and apply a small quantity of this paste to the finger-marks, rubbing it in lightly with the tip of the finger. The benzol will evaporate in a few moments, when the paper should be brushed with a clean, soft brush. If the first application is not sufficient, repeat the operation. Experiment on a piece of waste paper before working on anything you value.

REPLY IS DELIVERED. (By Associated Press) PARIS, June 13.—Frenck Poincaré's reply to the British memorandum on the subject of The Hague conference was delivered to the British embassy Monday evening. The reply says that if experts are sent to The Hague from France they are likely to favor a proposition for sending of an expert commission to Russia to investigate conditions there, if Russia will consent.
