THE OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE—by Condo

SALT HELPS TO MAKE GOOD HAY

Application of common salt to hay in now or stack has a two-fold effect. It is a long practical custom in Europe and in some sections of the United States.

The addition of common salt to hay that contains large amounts of weeds or other unpalatable material has undoubtedly undoubted merits. It improves the aroma, increases the keeping quality, and causes hay to be more palatable. It is necessary to stack or store hay carrying a high percentage of moisture the application of salt tends to prevent spoiling by checking fermentation and preventing moulding, according to F. H. Stever, professor of agricultural chemistry, Harvard university.

If hay has been allowed to become too mature before being cut, salt is frequently added to improve the palatability. The usual rate of application is 15 or 20 pounds to each ton. No recent work has been done along this line.

If any member of the Union County Ad Club has in mind a trip to South Oregon on or about June 26th they can represent the Union County Ad Club in the celebration to be held at Grants Pass to mark the completion of the road to the Oregon Marble Caves in Josephine County. The Grants Pass Chamber of Commerce through the Oregon State Chamber has invited the Union County Ad Club to send a delegation to that celebration.

Word received in La Grande from D. H. Heavis, who is looking after the joint exhibit from Wallawa and Union counties at the Oregon Tourist Sportsmen Exhibit in the Armory at Portland during the Rose Show is to the effect that the exhibit is a very attractive one. The Wallawa exhibit includes some splendid views of the mountains and lakes of that county, and some of the most beautiful fish that have ever been caught in the streams there.

These fish have been frozen into blocks of ice. The Union County exhibit in connection with the Wallawa county exhibit includes a panorama picture of the Grande Ronde valley and a beautifully colored photograph of the Riverside Park and the tourist camp grounds. This photograph is said by those who have seen it, to be one of the finest views of the park that have yet been taken. As the exhibit is in the same building that houses the Portland Rose Show the number of people who will see the Wallawa-Union county exhibit will, of course, run into the thousands.
