COVE CHERRIES ARE RIPENING

(Special to The Observer)
COVE, July 11.—Cherry time has arrived in Cove. Work began in a few orchards this morning. Cherries do not ripen all at the same time—even the same variety ripens several days earlier in one locality than another—this difference is due to elevation, as the orchards in Cove lie on a hillside.
Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dovens of Payette, Idaho, who came to Cove last week, have returned to their home.
Mr. and Mrs. Don Gale of Union, spent the week-end in Cove, the guests of Mrs. Gale's mother, Mrs. Carl Bloom.
Mrs. Carl Bloom left for Union Sunday morning to be absent several days.
Mr. and Mrs. E. Payne, who came to Cove on the Fourth to visit with friends have returned to their home in Walla Walla. While here they were the guests of Mrs. T. W. Conklin and also Mrs. Lou Payne.
Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Tripper will leave early in the week for their camp on the Minam. Mr. and Mrs. Tripper spend two months of every summer at this beautiful spot and their "camp" is an ideal summer home.

Elmer Hansen, son of Rev. H. J. Hansen, of Cambridge, Idaho, is in Cove for the summer.
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McDonald were in Grande visitors on Saturday.
Lee Ellen Breckers tripped over her dog on Friday evening and dislocated her elbow. On first examination it was thought to be broken, but after a physician and her injury was found to be not a break but out of joint, so while it was extremely painful it was not serious.
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Davis gave a small dinner party on Thursday evening.
W. F. Breckers, area local merchant, spent his leisure day Sunday hunting and fishing in the mountains.
The Aspen Grove is well filled with campers at this season of the year. This grove is one of the best spots of the earth, and while it is not equipped as are some of the modern camp grounds of today, it has clear, sparkling spring water to offer to the thirsty tourist, and an array of giant trees whose shade and cooling breeze to the tired wayfarer.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE REQUESTED

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 11.—Improvements of facilities for training women for business and professional occupations will be the principal subject considered at the fourth annual convention of the new and Professional Women's clubs, which will convene here Tuesday.
The convention will deal especially with means of attaining the actual or prospective business woman in training for the position for which she is best suited.
Delegations from women's clubs in all parts of the country will attend the convention, those from the extreme northwest journeying here on special trains. Many parties from the southwest, east and from virtually every city in the south will make the trip by automobile.
The visitors will be welcomed at Chattanooga by Miss Olga Smith, president of the Chattanooga Business Women's club, hostess to the national convention, and the response will be made by Miss Fannie McDaniel, president of the local club.
The convention will then set down to business sessions and when not hindered by the work of the general body delegates will be busy with departmental and committee meetings. The election of officers will be held on Friday.
The annual luncheon of noon Wednesday, the banquet Thursday evening and other festive events at historical interest because of their connection with the Civil War are in favor of strict regulation during the main social events, and has decided to call a conference of representatives of the various branches of the business and professional women's clubs with a view to reaching a solution of this much vexed problem.

PROTECTION IS HELD NECESSITY

LONDON, July 11.—Postmaster-General Kellaway of Great Britain has given notice that the property rights of press associations and news agencies to news which may be open to appropriation by wireless broadcast stations must be protected. He has announced that he is in favor of strict regulation in such matters, and has decided to call a conference of representatives of the various branches of the business and professional women's clubs with a view to reaching a solution of this much vexed problem.

"How far the lifting of copyright and non-copyright matter from the newspapers and press associations for wireless use may be permitted," said Mr. Kellaway, "is a most important question. The representatives of newspaper enterprises have pointed out that it would be intolerable to allow broadcasting firms to lift matter indiscriminately from the papers and spread it to the public. They have rightly said that news was not dead throughout the country for a considerable time after its publication, and that their property rights in this news must be safeguarded."

The Postmaster-General said he was impressed with the arguments of the newspapers and press associations, and he was hopeful it would soon be possible to issue regulations protecting their rights. "I see no reason why some agreement cannot be arrived at between the newspapers and the broadcasting firms," he added, "although I admit there is a cogency in the suggestion that even in regard to non-copyright information the broadcasting firm will set up a new form of competition with the news agencies and newspapers."
