THEATRES

AT SHERRYS—LAST DAY

A joyous leap away from the conventional run of motion pictures is found in "The Right That Failed," the new Metro picture starring Bert Lyell, which opened last night at the Sherry Theatre. The author, J. P. Marquand, whose story first appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, has got away from the stereotyped plot and developed a set of characters new to the screen with a humorous and fresh observation that holds the audience in its grip.
It is good, clean, wholesome fun, with plenty of action and breathtaking suspense.

The story was transferred to the screen by Lenore Coffee, who deserves credit for the sparkling continuity. Lloyd Vellier, author of "Within the Law," and "The Thirteenth Chair" also has turned to screening pictures for Metro, his last one being "The Merry Widow." The Metro picture is a merry piece of life, full of every detail.

"The Sage Brush Trail," the new ture which carries the utmost in adventure and romance. Written by H.

H. Van Loan, the well known author of such screen successes as "The Virgin of Stamboul," "The Great Robbery," and "Fighting Mad," he declares it to be his greatest western, even surpassing the last mentioned picture in points of interest. It takes the spectator on a fascinating journey to the heart of the West and offers him a
