CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

THE OFFICE CAT

—BY JUNIUS—

The generous citizen says it is getting about time for another drive to start. We have not had one now in several weeks.

THOUGHTS OF MIDDLE AGE.
The kids can go camping; I'll stay home and fry.
I'm a middle-aged guy.

A friend of mine claims that it pays any hotel to entertain his wife. She always cleans the room beautifully before she unpacks.

She—"Isn't it quite difficult to eat soup with a moustache?"
He—"Well, it is rather a strain."

Maud Muller must have a tractor by this time.

A WORD AHEAD.
Student (writing home): "How do you spell 'financially'?"
Other: "F-i-n-a-n-c-i-a-l-l-y, and there are two 'i's in 'embarrassed'."

BE A SELF STARTER.
Be a self-starter! Don't wait for the boss!

Roll up your sleeves and dig in! The time you spend waiting will all be a loss!

You were made for a winner! Begin!

Be a self-starter! Let other men wait until the boss tells them to go!

The time you spend waiting the man but you be the worker who sets his own gait!

If you wait on the crowd, you'll be slow.

Don't wait for the boss! Be the man in the lead!

The followers land on the shelves. In shop and in office, the men that we need.

Are fellows who think for themselves.

In the days of Marcell waves, daughter sat on papa's lap and patted his glossy pate. "No waves for you, dad," she said, "you're all beach."

"Mrs. Jones I— I tell yah, the sheriff came today and took your husband's clothes!"

"What! Outrageous! I wish you would find my husband and tell him what a—"

"He knows it, ma'm. He was wearin' 'em at the time."

JUDGES NEED MORE POWER SAYS TAFT

strict judge with a description of the character of the arrears and a recommendation as to the extra judicial force needed in his district. The conference thus called into consideration large plans for the ensuing year by which the district judges available for assignment may be best used.

Would Change Condition.
"It ends the absurd condition, under which each district judge has had to paddle his own canoe and has done as much business as he thought proper. Thus one judge has broken himself down in attempting to get through an impossible docket, and another has let his arrears grow, in a calm philosophical contemplation of them as an inevitable necessity that need not cause him to be awake nights.

The members of the supreme court have become so anxious to avoid another congestion like that of the decade before 1891 that they have deemed it proper themselves to prepare a new bill amending the jurisdiction of the supreme court and to urge its passage. It is now pending in both houses of congress. The act of 1891 introduced into the appellate system a discretionary jurisdiction of the supreme court over certain classes of cases.

"By the act of 1916 this discretionary power of the court was extended and its obligatory jurisdiction reduced, as to review of state court judgments, so that now the only question which can come by writ of error from a state court to the supreme court as a matter of right, are those in which the validity of a state statute or authority of a federal statute or authority under the constitution has been the subject of consideration by the court in the former or denied in the latter case. All constitutional questions arising in the federal district courts arising in the federal courts in the district courts or the circuit court of appeals may, under existing law be brought to the supreme court as of right.

Increases Court Power.
The new bill increases the discretionary appellate jurisdiction now vested in the supreme court so that no case of any kind can be taken from the circuit court of appeals to the supreme court of the United States, without application for a certiorari. Obligatory appeals from all other courts subordinate to the supreme court of the United States except state courts are abolished and only review by certiorari is provided. This includes the court of appeals of the District of Columbia and the court of claims as well as the territorial courts. Direct appeals from the district courts to the supreme court in jurisdictional and constitutional questions are abolished and such questions are to reach the supreme court only through the circuit court of appeals. These changes, it is thought, will give the supreme court such control over the business that it can cope up with its docket.

"What I would suggest is that congress provide for a commission, to be appointed by the president, of two supreme court justices, two circuit court judges, two district judges and three lawyers of prominence from a list recommended by the American Bar Association, to prepare and recommend to congress amendments to the present statutes of practice and the judicial code authorizing a unit administration of law and equity in form of civil action. The act should provide for a permanent commission similarly created, with power to prepare a system of rules of procedure for adoption by the supreme court. Power to amend from time to time should also be given. The rules and their amendments, after approval by the court, should be submitted to congress for its action but should become effective in six months if congress takes no action. In this way the procedure would be framed by those most familiar with it and by those whose duty it is to enforce it. The advantage of experiment in the laboratory of the court would furnish valuable suggestions for bettering the system.

Last Quarterly Conference of Methodist Church to be Tonight

SECOND SHOWING OF 'KING OF SHEBA'

(By The Gardens Publicity Agent)
The "King of Sheba," a musical comedy set on an island ruled by the King of Sheba, presented by the Tri-City Review last night at The Gardens, will be again shown this evening. The wrestling exhibition between Bogarta Singh and O. D. Scott will not be held due to the city boxing commission, after investigation, denying the right to hold the match.

The "King of Sheba" is a clever comedy and illustrations have Eddie Mer and Phil Berg went to the island and became judges and dispensing ministers.

The court held was full of laudable incidents, especially when a girl was brought before the judge on the charge of the larceny of some Lind-burger cheese.

"The Girl from Chile" will be shown tomorrow night at The Gardens.

DON'T FORGET THIS STORY! IS 'THE CASTLELEVER STORY'

VACATIONING.

It is well for everyone to take a rest for a little while from his cares and burdens if he can, but vacationing has become an overworked habit just about the same as has gum chewing and a lot more modern day inventions.

We know people who just must have their vacation, sure they must be included in the list who while away a month or two in the summer, and then in the winter they must have another month at Christmas and holiday time, being perfectly willing to work a little between times.

It may be the modern way, probably it is all right, but somehow we get back to the old idea that a large percentage of people are now living the fluffy ruffle life, a life of foam, while the other per cent. does the paying.

You know in order to pay, someone has to stay constantly on the business end, and there is a class of people who always pay, while another class always get by without paying.

The affairs of life are so jumbled up that it would seem the fellow who takes the path of least resistance gets by as well as the load carriers. But he does not in the end. Sooner or later the day of reckoning comes and then it is that honest toil and attention to business wins out.

"WE ARE NOT SAYIN'—"

To refer back to the question of prohibition enforcement, and to renew again the statements made in last Evening's Observer to the effect that public sentiment either does or does not enforce laws, we would like to call attention to something that may have quite an effect upon the present complex conditions.

In the Portland Oregonian of Wednesday, the first column of the first page carried a big story headed, "Eight Men Shot in Liquor Fray" while in the third column of the same page another headline read "Bayers Run Wild in Roaring Camp... All Drinks Soft Ones."

The first was a story telling of a liquor raid where people lost their lives, while the second story was headlines on the Bayers week frontier saloon entertainment held in the public auditorium in Portland. Is there any connection between the two events? Does not the continual showing of saloon brawl scenes with hurdy-gurdy dance hall concerts, no matter how good the people are who engage in them, have a psychological effect on the public to drink, make and barter moonshine?

We are not saying it is, nor we're not saying it "ain't," but there is food for honest thought and reflection in the matter.

ENTERTAINING IN A BIG WAY.

Every citizen of La Grande should come to a realization that this community is called upon to entertain the Dokies in a big way. By this we mean that La Grande takes her place beside such cities as Walla Walla, Boise and Yakima when it comes to entertaining, and it is up to us to make good.

Consider for a moment that the area of this lodge convention covers the entire northwest country, with British Columbia as well, and that delegates are coming with bands, drill teams and drum corps and one will get some notion of the extensive plans which must be laid to see that La Grande shows the visitors a good time and sends them away happy, with praise of the Grande Ronde valley in their hearts.

A FOREST TRAGEDY.

He left his camp-fire burning to see if the fire lookout would pick it up—He did.

He thought this would be a good test to see if the district ranger was on the job—He was.

He wondered if a fire would burn very fast in the dry forest—It did.

He thought he could get away before the ranger could catch up with him—He couldn't.

He thought he could bluff the judge at his trial—He didn't.

He wondered if the judge would have the nerve to sentence him to jail—He did.

We wonder if he will put out his camp-fire the next time he is in the forest—He will.

We don't blame President Harding for demanding that congress stay on the job during the industrial troubles. Congress has a habit of adjourning when it sees fit, but the president evidently means to keep them at work with him during the crisis.

Ohio will not let the progressive finger point to her, not as long as she has a favorite son as president of the United States.
