NEW MENTOR JOINS STAFF

Ralph D. Casey, of Seattle, Joins School of Journalism at the University of Oregon; Has Big Record.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Aug. 12.—Ralph D. Casey, of Seattle, will join the staff of the School of Journalism this fall as professor of Trade Journalism and Literary Markets, according to an announcement made recently by President P. L. Campbell. Under an arrangement with Dean Eric W. Allen, Professor Casey has spent three years in the field pursuing himself as an authority on subjects of trade, class and industrial journalism, including agricultural publications. Most of this time he spent in New York where he served for two years as a member of the staff of the New York Herald, forming connections that would be of use to the Oregon school.

"The addition of Mr. Casey," said Dean Allen today, "gives the Oregon School of Journalism the largest as well as the most experienced faculty west of the Missouri river, and the completion of the new building to replace that recently burned will give it the most adequate and efficient quarters in the West, though not of the most permanent type of architecture, the department of which Mr. Casey will have charge has been well founded through the labors of Professor Alfred Powers and Dean Colin V. Dymont, both of whom will continue in the work. In my belief, we shall have the strongest work in class, trade and industrial journalism in the entire country. Possibly one eastern institution may be an exception, but nothing in the West."

Mr. Casey has been actively engaged in newspaper and magazine work since his student days in the University of Washington, from which he graduated in 1913. After graduation he became reporter, assistant sports editor, editorial writer and assistant city editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, at the same time serving as editor of the Washington Alumnus and taking graduate work in the University. In 1916 he was called to the University of Montana as assistant professor of journalism, in the summer of 1917 he was on the staff of the University of California, and in the summer of 1918 he was publicity director of all Montana institutions of learning. He left Montana to accept a professorship at the University of Washington, and in Seattle he became managing editor of the Pacific Review. He left Seattle for New York to perfect himself in his profession. Besides his service with the New York Herald, Mr. Casey has recently formed part of the Hearst organization, coming to Seattle about the time Mr. Hearst acquired the Post-Intelligencer. Six months ago Mr. Casey became assistant publicity director of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, while pursuing his studies of trade journalism in the Northwest.

In his undergraduate days, Mr. Casey was college editor of the student daily and of the student magazine and served on the student board of control. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Beta Theta Pi, and Sigma Delta Chi. He is married but has no children.

ROSY FUTURE FOR TURK EMPLOYEES

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 16. (By Mail).—The increased cost of living in Constantinople is now 800 per cent higher than in 1914, according to figures compiled by the American chamber of commerce. The highest prices reached during the war and post-war period was 1966 per cent in 1920. There has been a slight falling off in the figures during the past year. Few government employees have received more than one-half of their salaries during the past two years. But today new taxes are in sight, and the Turkish treasury says full salaries may be expected within a few months.

TO ENLARGE IRRIGATION DITCH WENATCHEE, Wn., Aug. 12.—Investigations are under way by engineers of the Wenatchee reclamation district and the Washington Coast Utilities company to determine the feasibility of enlarging and changing the system at some points to increase the supply of water delivered to the orchards in the Wenatchee district.

The investigation is undertaken in response to general demands that the water supply be increased. Complaints have been made, reclamation district officers assert, despite that the full quota of water has been coursing through the ditches of the water-users in the district.

The tentative plans include replacement of three frames near the head of the ditch by tunnels and the enlargement of a number of siphons. Concrete linings in several parts of the canal would be raised to carry more water. The present tunnels, it has been decided, can be made to carry 25 per cent more water without much work upon them.
