One Man's Idea of a Prince

This fellow thought a prince should have a pet monkey and a dog. He called himself Prince Louis Henri de Bourbon de Bourbon, de Bourbon, but New York police say he's Harold Schwan, a 25-year-old head and bean brained of New Britain, Conn. They'd like to see him to ask him about four or five girls who say he is their husband.

NEW ZEALAND TO RULE SAMOANS

(By Associated Press) AMERICAN SAMOA, July 17 (By Mail).—The Samoan chiefs of British Samoa have expressed themselves at a meeting in a ready to submit to the rule of New Zealand without further comment, as a result of an improvement of feeling between the chiefs and the New Zealand government in the past six months.

This reconciliation, however, has resulted in expressions of displeasure by a number of the white residents who are still continuing opposition to the New Zealand government.

NOTICE TO REPUBLICANS.

Face Danger Standfast. Dangers are no more hid, if they once seem light; and more dangers have deceived men than covered them; nay, it were better to meet some dangers halfway, though they come nothing near, than to keep too long a watch upon their approaches; for if a man watch too long, it is odds he will fall asleep.—Lord Bacon.

BAKER FIGHTERS PULL OFF DRAW

BAKER, Aug. 15.—Whether or not Billy Beards and Battling Lubbes really fought a draw will be a question that will be undecided among fans of Baker for some time as the result of their ten round main event Saturday night. Opening the event for two rounds it was all for the Battler and in the second round he connected with a nice right to Billy's chin that sent the latter to the mat. However, he was up before the count could be started and appeared to get stronger. In the fourth round Lubbes struck his right—the one which he broke some months ago—and this rattled him somewhat. The remainder of the bout featured first one batter and then the other, with Lubbes taking clean blows and Beards winning on infighting. Beards' constant playing to the galleries is disgusting and the sooner that he realizes that he is no Jack Dempsey the sooner he will gain the favor of the fans.

UNDUE PRAISE TO KING'S MINISTERS

People Think That All of King George's Speeches Are Composed by Ministers; Not Always True.

(By Associated Press) LONDON, July 28. (By Mail).—So many of King George's speeches are written for him by his ministers as all the world knows, that he never gets credit for the good speeches he thinks up himself. People always say: "His speech was all right, but some one else wrote it for him."

This is not always true. In everything that relates to affairs of state he speaks only through the mouths of his responsible ministers, and the "speech from the throne," delivered when parliament opens, is far from a thrilling production, and it is not his. But King George made a really good address the other day in London at the opening of the fine new building of the London county council. He dwelt upon the wisdom of the men of past ages in erecting fine buildings in their cities, and drew a picture of the necessity of the vested authority being adequately housed; an authority meanly housed would be meanly esteemed. It would be difficult to emphasize too strongly the importance of efficient local government to the general well-being of the country, the King said, and the handsome edifice of the London county council should stimulate the development of that sense of citizenship so difficult and yet so imperative to cultivate. His Majesty undoubtedly wrote this speech himself, and it has been most favorably commented upon; nevertheless he is getting little credit for it. The world thinks it is the product of some minister whose mouthpiece was King George.
