BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
KINGDOM OF WITNESS. Neither shall this man be taken out of the world, but he will be taken out of the world. — Luke 12:21.

Jerome E. Foley

Death comes to all. This is brought forcefully home in the passing of Jerome E. Foley, pioneer citizen, town builder and general all-around good man. He was known to every one as "Jerry", just as he was known to everyone as one of the fairest, squarest men who ever lived.

La Grande will miss him, for in the past his firmness of character, his desire to see the community advance, his charitable disposition and his pleasant personality combined to make him one of the city's foremost men.

Nothing appealed more to Mr. Foley than to erect buildings in the city he had chosen for his home. He could not stand vacant lots. To him nothing was of value unless it was working; was doing something; rendering some service to society.

This is best explained by the different structures he has built in La Grande, and by the way which he always offered encouragement to anyone who had intentions of building a home or business building.

He was a good neighbor, a good citizen—generous to everyone and it was little wonder that this entire community grieves over his death for everyone in La Grande has lost a good friend in the passing of "Jerry" Foley.

To the widow, and the children who have grown to manhood and womanhood in La Grande, the Evening Observer extends the sympathy of this community. His death was not unexpected, yet it is none the less easy to bear, for death is death and the one who is dear to us, whether in the day of youth or in the brown age of ripened years, is indeed hard to part with.

The Ford Show

Saturday the Ford show will be put on in La Grande. Is it a good show? Well, now you don't suppose Henry Ford with his tremendous wealth would send out anything but a first class show, do you?

He has not, for the show is up to the advertising and even better. The age of machinery is with us and Henry's machinery is of the practical kind. He kept in mind the ordinary fellow when he made every machine, except an aristocratic automobile which he took over a short time ago and which he does not feature to a large extent.

His wares are made for service and to do the work. Fine trimmings make no hit with the man who lives at Dearborn.

We have often thought it would be quite a pleasant meeting if practical Henry Ford could visit La Grande and meet his local agent, the practical Julius Roesch. They are men with minds running in the same direction and doubtless they would have a lot of things to tell each other.

Mrs. Zuber Never Quits

La Grande has one citizen who never quits; like those who succeed at any one thing, this lady keeps constantly "carrying on" in her chosen life's work.

When the war was on and everyone was nervous and on edge, ready to move and remove to other localities, Mrs. S. C. Zuber kept right on building houses. Her patriotic duty was to house people, to prepare roofs for their heads when they got down to earth and realized that with all the excitement they had to live on day by day and therefore needed a place to rest, and needed protection from the elements.

The Evening Observer has no hesitancy in saying that Mrs. Zuber has been of more intrinsic worth to La Grande than all the building and loan agencies operating here, for she has been a builder of homes in the full meaning of that term.

At first she drifted into the business in a small way. Demand for homes had always been keen and active in La Grande and Mrs. Zuber was frequently forced beyond her will and perhaps her judgment, to build faster than she wished to. But no home was completed until it was leased, so strong was the demand, and so the business grew that healthy growth which compensated for the "finicky" tenant who wanted this and that and finally finding the Zuber course in handling tenants was sufficiently fair but not foolish, settled down to live like the rest of us here.

High prices did not scare Mrs. Zuber. She had no love for high prices, but her building program did not stop when everything went out of sight. At regular intervals ground was broken for new homes and soon there would rise a comfortable home.

And here is one of the strange features of Mrs. Zuber's business experience: When the wartime prices shot everything up she built houses, when the prices fell she stopped building houses, and today she is still building houses, but the houses of today are costing more than did the construction during and following the war. Today a completed residence of the same dimensions and some class stands her a considerable larger investment than it did when everything was out of joint, as it were. So, doesn't it? If you don't believe it, try building one—then, and if you ever get it finished you will agree to the statement regarding Mrs. Zuber's experience.

We believe no better citizen has ever lived here than Mrs. Zuber. She has not claimed the spotlight neither has she sought exalted position because of her work. On the other hand, she has been and is an earnest, consistent worker in God's kingdom doing things that need to be done, playing the game with her fellowmen open and on the square, at the same time making La Grande a better place to live in and adding to the taxable value of this community every month of her life. We bid good night to Mrs. Zuber.

Who started the state fair board scrap? But who starts all of the scraps in Oregon lately? Echo answers—who?

Little Willie—"If you can reach it."

SPEAKING FOR HIS OWN.
"How do you like your new car?" asked the Lizzie Driver.
"Great," replied the Big Six Driver. "It runs so smoothly you don't feel it. Not a bit of noise, you can't hear it. Perfect quietness, you can't smell a thing. And speed—why it whizzes! Can't see it!"

"Must be some car," ventured the Lizzie Driver. "Can't see it, can't smell it, can't hear it, and can't see it. How do you know it is there?"

WHICH IS RIGHT.
"What happens when a man's temperature goes down as low as it can go?"
"He gets cold feet," answered a small jopid.
"If Autumn comes, can water be so far removed that fear will not creep in to jar?"

IN THE DAY'S NEWS.
Major General Sir George T. Miles, war hero, who has been appointed to the governorship of South Australia, is reported in Washington as the chief military representative of the British mission which visited the United States during the war. The general, who is said to be 64 years of age, has not a hollow and striking career, and one that has excited much active interest and speculation about.

A Snug Fit Under the Arch

It's restful! Just at that point where all the weight of the body falls—on the top of the foot arch. The Cantilever Shoe catches that weight and distributes it properly. No wonder a woman feels so much better in Cantilever Shoes, which fit so snugly under the arch and seem to lighten her step.

No Metal in the Shank
The well-designed Shank is a distinguishing feature of the Cantilever Shoe. It is shaped to fit the natural contour of the foot arch. The fitting is perfected by the flexibility of the shank, which, when the shoe is laced, conforms to the under-curve of the foot. By wearing Cantilevers, you have shoes which fit precisely under the arch; and snugly at the heel, comfortably at the toe, as well.

Cantilever Shoes increase your "pep," your enjoyment in healthful activity. They are shoes that help you to feel fresh and rested after the day's duties. The trim appearance of Cantilever Shoes pleases women who desire comfort, health and good looks. These shoes will pay for themselves in increased happiness. And yet the prices are moderate. The quality is splendid.
