BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WAIT PATIENTLY.—Wait on the Lord: be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart: wait, I say, on the Lord.—Psalm 27:14.

Now For Settlers

Editor Clarke Leiter of the Portland Telegram, admitting that the 1925 Exposition is now set so far ahead that it may be a reality and it may not, clears the decks and starts a fight for settlers for Oregon.

He will have the aid of everyone in this venture, for that is what Oregon needs—more people. People who come to stay, people who come to work and make something for themselves and develop the state, are needed.

This should be done by constant work. Spurts in anything do not count for much. It is the every day grind that finally makes headway. The man who can issue a fine newspaper one day and then fall down for a week is not the man for the job, neither is the state that makes one big hurrah and lays down for ten years going to get the people.

A systematic, constant, progressive and sane campaign for settlers is Oregon's need and has been for the past decade. In this work it must be admitted the state has been lax and the railroads have been dilatory. We have provided financial backing for installing irrigation projects, yet we have paid no attention to the settlement of those projects when completed. As a result we have several excellent irrigated tracts in the state without people. We have soil, climate and water, making these projects ideal, yet we do not get the people to go on the land.

It takes no further argument to show that Editor Leiter's plan in the Telegram for a permanent bureau to gather in people on these lands is the one great need of the state at present, and the advice given to Portland in a late issue of the Telegram is timely and important. It is to the effect that Portland should get behind, both financially and morally, a movement of wide scope for settlers, to be carried on continuously.

Eastern Oregon is very much interested in the Telegram's program and stands ready to aid in any way possible.

Every Week, Fire Prevention Week

Some bright mind pulled a "fire prevention week" supposed to be dated from October 3rd to 9th, but like all of these bunk weeks, the pup did not suck and the fire prevention was little discussed.

As a matter of fact every week should be fire prevention week, and it is with careful people. We don't endorse the paid publicity agent who starts a campaign for any particular week for any one thing, for it is only a scheme to secure free advertising.

But we do most heartily approve of a regular campaign of education in the endeavor to get people to be more careful regarding fire.

It is claimed in 1921 that the fire lose in this nation cost $500,000,000, 15,000 people were burned to death, and 25,000 were maimed, bruised or injured from fire. The home is the nest for fires, as 65 per cent occur in the homes and women and children constitute the greatest portion of casualties.

Common sense is all that is necessary to avoid useless fires, the good old common sense which sent the child to the well for water and caused him to put that water on live ashes taken from the cook stove.

Why Not Wheat?

The government put its arm around the sheep industry and the cotton growing industry when it ordered the War Finance corporation back to work. It saved those two industries and turned them from losing ventures into profitable undertakings.

Now, we notice that the rice growers of California are to be aided by the same corporation to prevent a flunk in rice prices.

This is all well and good, but if the wool, rice and cotton can be financed and protected from a declining market, what is the matter with wheat?

Why can't the same good government with the same War Finance corporation, in the same manner render assistance to the wheat grower and the cattle grower as well?

Why should the two great products, meat and bread, be permitted to suffer when wool, cotton and rice are cared for?

Iowa republicans are about to denounce Brookhart, the regular nominee, and support the democrat. Statement No. 1, perhaps, may not thrive in the Iowa black soil.

Besides electing two commissioners, the voters of La Grande will be called upon to amend the charter in places where it needs fixing.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Rt. Rev. George H. Kinsolving, who today completes fifty years in the episcopate of the Protestant Episcopal Church is the present head of the Texas diocese with residence at Austin. Bishop Kinsolving, who is nearing his seventy-fifth year, is a native of Virginia. His academic education was received at the University of Virginia, which institution he attended from 1867 to 1869. He then entered the Theological Seminary of Virginia, graduating in 1874 and being ordained a deacon of the Church the same year. His first clerical labors were in Baltimore, where he served as assistant rector of Christ Church and later of St. Mark's Church. In 1878 he was called to St. John's Church in Chattanooga and from there to the Church of the Epiphany in Philadelphia, where he remained from 1881 to 1892. In the latter year he was elected assistant bishop of Texas and a year later succeeded the late Bishop Gregg as head of the diocese.

THE OFFICE CAT

—BY JUNIUS—

SPEAKING OF SALARIES.

A colored preacher in Alabama was one day talking to one of his aged parishioners, who required to express the opinion that ministers ought to be better paid.

"I'm shore glad to hear you say dat," responded the parson warmly. "I'se pleased to hear dat you think we'd ought to get bigger salaries."

"Shore I does," said the old man. "And what makes you think dat way?"

"Den we'd get a better class of preachers."

The Polk Co. (Fla.) Record heads an editorial, "Where Was You Did Last Night?" This is rather a personal question, but we'll admit ours was, of course, with some other fellow.

"I lost a lot of money today."

"How come?"

"I proposed to a wealthy girl and she refused."

"What animal," said the teacher of the class in natural history, "makes the nearest approach to beer?"

"The deer," timidly ventured the little boy with the curly hair.

The following item from the Wellington, Okla., News sounds like the good old times. "Lightning struck a Wellington book agent on the cheek, glanced off and killed a mule two hundred yards away.

The farmer isn't the only one who gets his living out of dirt. There is a modern novelist.

IN FLYTOWN.

"Where is Busy Fly?"

"On the paper."

"And Lazy Fly?"

"On the screen."

AMENITIES.

Bostus and Mose were having a heated argument. In reply to some remark of Bostus, Mose said:

"Dose I know, nigger! Don't you think I've got any brains?"

"Huh!" Bostus replied. "Niggah, if brains were dynamite, you couldn't blow off your hat!"

Wonder how many men would be satisfied if their dreams came true.

The only way the mouse will get the earth or anything else will be to inherit it.

Downstairs in the kitchen his mother was struggling with the supper fire. "Tommy," said his mother, "fetch me a stick of wood."

"Ah, mother," replied Tommy, "the grammatical portion of your education has been sadly neglected. You should say, 'Thomas, my son, transport from the recumbent collection of combustible material on the threshold of the edifice one of those curtailed excrescence of defunct fog.'"

"Let the howlers howl,
And the growlers growl,
And the prowlers prowl.
And the rye-saws go it.
Behind the night
There's plenty of light,
And things are all right,
And—I know it."

A bullet from a pistol with which Frank Barrington took his life in Seattle, Wednesday, crossed an alley, broke a window and narrowly missed A. H. Turner, seated at his desk in the Haight building.

Truly Wonderful Language.

A missionary in Madagascar, in a recent letter home, declared that sometimes a whole line of a hymn consists of a single word in the Malagasy language. There are three words that came in the first lesson the other Sunday: "ikotokelilaiadilaona," "fanitsahanareo," and "nampandoavanareo." And if you want the word for "your neighbor," here it is: "mpifarolobodirindrinares."
