TOM MOORE

—In—

Mr. BARNES
OF NEW YORK

By Archibald Clavering Guntér

TOM MOORE IN A ROMANTIC ROLE

—In Tom's last picture he appeared as a grimy Irish street-cleaner—in "Mr. Barnes of New York" he is a wealthy young American seeking adventure in Europe.

—Handsome, debonair, genial, spoiling for a fight or a frolic, he will charm the heart right out of your chest. It's a picture that's packed with joy for everybody.

OPENING OF NEW STORE FRIDAY

Cherry Florists will hold an opening of their newly equipped and newly furnished floral store Friday and at that time the public is invited to see the new equipment which Mr. Cherry recently purchased in the east and which has converted his establishment into the most modern of its kind known to the floral trade.

"The best is none too good for La Grande," said Mr. Cherry. "I realize that this city and community are growing and growing rapidly therefore anyone here in any line of business must keep up with that growth in order to give the service that the people want. No business can stand still, if it does it is no business. The public is most cordially invited to be at our opening tomorrow at which time the new equipment and furnishings will be explained. La Grande now will have the flower industry just as perfectly as can any city on the entire coast."

Article 7. Declares dwellings inviolable; these cannot be forcibly entered except in accordance with the law.

Article 8. Freedom of conscience and the free profession and practice of religion are inviolable rights of every citizen.

Article 9. Guarantees free expression of opinion and assembly without arms and the formation of associations not opposed to public morality.

Article 10. Provides that all citizens shall have the right to free elementary education.

Article 11. Confers the right of suffrage on all citizens of the age of 21 of both sexes. All those of 20 may vote for the senate, those of the age of 21 for deputies.

Article 12. The legislature hereby created, known as the parliament of the Irish Free State, is to consist of the king, a chamber of deputies and a senate.

Article 13. Provides for the oath of allegiance, says: "I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V. and his heirs and successors by law and in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland and Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of Nations." The oath shall be taken and subscribed to by every member of parliament of the Irish Free State before taking his seat therein.

Article 14. The number of members of the chamber shall be fixed from time to time by the parliament but shall consist of not less than one member for each 20,000, or 20,000, to be elected on the principles of proportional representation. Every university in the free state shall be entitled to four representatives in the chamber.

Article 15. The senate shall be composed of citizens who have done useful public service, or who because of special qualifications or attainments represent important aspects of the nation's life.

Article 16. The number of senators shall be fifty-six. The senators must be 35 years of age, the term of office is twelve years, subject to the provisions for the constitution of the first senate.

Article 17. Provides for the election of senators every three years.

Article 18. Article 19 cover money bills. It is provided that the chamber shall have legislative authority relative to money bills, exclusive of the senate, but money cannot be appropriated unless the purpose of the appropriation is recommended by a message from the representative of the crown.

Article 20 covers the withholding of royal assent. The representative of the crown in withholding assent to a bill must not in accordance with the usage in the case of the Dominion of Canada. Bills shall be without force unless royal assent is given them within a year.

Article 21. The parliament of the Irish Free State has exclusive right to regulate the raising and maintenance of such armed forces as are mentioned in the Anglo-Irish Treaty, and such forces shall be subject to the control of the parliament.

Article 22. A bill passed by both houses may be suspended for ninety days on the written demand of two-fifths of the chamber or a majority of the senate within seven days of its passage. Such bill shall be submitted to a referendum of the people if demanded, within 90 days.

Article 23. The parliament may provide for the initiation by the people of proposals for laws of constitutional amendments, such legislation must provide that the proposals be initiated on petition of 50,000 voters. If the parliament rejects such a proposal it must be submitted to an ordinary referendum for decision.

Article 24. Provides that "except in case of actual invasion the Irish Free State shall not be committed to active participation in any war without the consent of the Free State Parliament."

Article 25. Amendments to the constitution must be submitted to a referendum.

Article 26. The executive authority of the Free State is vested in the king, exercisable as in the Dominion of Canada by a representative of the crown. There will be a council to aid and advise in the government, styled the executive council, responsible to the chamber.
