In Photo Suit

When a health institute brought a photograph of pretty Mrs. Marka Morton O'Reilly, much could be said. The picture which showed Mrs. O'Reilly in a white dress, was not only a picture of a woman, but a picture of a woman who had been the subject of a health institute.

GORGEOUSNESS IS NOW TABOO

TOKIO, Oct. 26.—(By Mail).—The wedding trousseau of Princess Nagako, the future Empress of Japan, already has been completed in Kyoto. The selection of colors and patterns was made by the empress herself, who, aiming at the beauty of simplicity and avoiding gorgeousness, paid special attention to the matching of colors.

One of the gowns is of white silk, made of broad chenille and embroidered with a peacock design. Another will be of rose silk woven in wide width such as the authorities are trying to induce Japanese women to adopt to promote the weaving industry and foreign exportation; a third kimono is of celadon color embroidered with paulownia leaves, the crest of the empress. The two others are pale blue with chrysanthemum patterns and cream color with a wave design.

There was a rumor in local papers that the princess would wear a white foreign dress at her wedding. But this would be an unheard-of departure from all traditions and as for the coronation, the dresses to be worn at the ceremony will be the ancient Japanese kimono. The princess, however, may wear foreign evening dress at banquets.

According to Japanese custom girls belonging to the nobility must get married in the old ceremonial dress with a stiff divided skirt trailing on the ground, a set of kimono and a handsome court coat. The wear their hair hanging down and hold a short sword in their hand. The fiance also wears the old court dress with a small black cap. The regular wedding dress is white silk, the mourning color in Japan.

If Kidneys and Bladder Bother

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, stinging sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a stinging sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink, which often quickly relieves bladder irritation.

A Public Testimonial

For several winters I have suffered from cold feet and a chilly feeling, with some times hot flushes for short periods, after which I would faint away, making my friends uncomfortable and miserable. I consumed a lot of food without doing me much good and nothing I took seemed to help me any. In spite of good care and almost constant attention I could not do my work well and was laid off part of the time. A large amount of money has been spent in trying to keep myself going, but, notwithstanding all this, I was sickly and weak, especially during the coldest nights, when my temperature would frequently be subnormal, while during the warmer days I was apt to be dry and feverish, and my lungs were always stopped up and my bowels clogged with clinkers, until I was no earthly use to myself or anybody else, and I was apt to die at any time. Last winter I tried a change of diet and after doing so did my work well all winter and was not laid up at all. I am, therefore, glad to make this public statement in the interest of suffering humanity, and recommend King Koal to all our neighbors, and I am sure they will be benefitted if they will use it every day as directed.
