William D. Grandy.

Tomorrow afternoon La Grande's citizens will assemble to pay their last respects to a fellow citizen whose death has claimed; a fellow citizen who was in many ways a big man; a fellow citizen whose entire life had been spent in this valley. To him La Grande was home first, last and all the time. To him the Grande Ronde valley was the best place in all the world. He was born here, grew to manhood here, took up the cares and responsibilities of life and began doing business at an early age. Starting as fireman on the O-W. railroad he followed railroading for a number of years. Then he engaged in business for himself. Later, due to the age of his father Ben W. Grandy, he was thrown to the foreground in handling all the possessions of this wealthy pioneer family.

William D. Grandy was a substantial man whose vision was not warped and whose desire at all times was that everyone should have a square deal.

As a man who took a profound interest in the affairs of city, county and state, Mr. Grandy naturally associated with the substantial element in a business way. He served the city of La Grande faithfully as one of its commissioners, and while discord often hung over the city hall, analysis of the cause of such discord very often proved Mr. Grandy's position was right on many city undertakings.

In his lifetime he turned his face to the future and never to the past. In his vision he could see a much larger La Grande and he constantly urged building for the future in a way that would be permanent and lasting.

Coming from pioneer stock the deceased carried strength of character and willingness to suffer without complaint. That was plainly demonstrated at the meeting of the city commission a few weeks ago when he resigned his position as president of the body. Seated in the chair of the presiding officer he uttered the words which severed him from his official duties, suffering great physical pain when so doing. Arising he left the position in a dignified manner and his face bore that sternness of purpose which had been one of his traits during his administration.

La Grande can ill afford to lose the wisdom and council of such men as Mr. Grandy, but fate decrees such things and tomorrow this city will unitedly mourn the loss of one of her able and useful sons.

Time to Do Something.

From Island City comes the news story that righteous indignation exists throughout the valley over the condition of the city street in La Grande that connects the Island City road with Adams avenue. Why can't something be done? Are we forever going to be calm in the face of trivial matters such as this, that not only turn trade from La Grande, but cause a feeling to arise which takes years to overcome?

Granting that plans are under way for paving the particular section, it must be admitted that all summer long the piece of road has been abominable when a little work would have kept it in good condition. And with paving planned, the winter is upon us, which will delay the improvement, so why not gravel that street and give the people who travel it a decent highway upon which to enter the city. The same can be said of East Adams and West Adams. Why?

This is something for the Ad Club or some other civic body to take up at once.

In the Day's News.

Few modern statesmen are the subject of so many good stories as M. Clemenceau, the famous war-time premier of France, who has just arrived in America. Here is one of the tales.
One day recently he went round the street markets of Paris testing prices, following his usual habit of seeing things for himself. Asking an old woman at one of the stalls the price of some carrots, he was told sixty centimes.
"They are too dear," he protested, "I will give you fifty."
The old woman looked at him a minute, perhaps to see if it was worth while bargaining, and then said: "Very well, you shall have them for fifty, my little old man, you resemble our good M. Clemenceau."

Odd and Interesting

Croesus was the first sovereign to coin gold, and Julius Caesar first set the example of engraving his own image on coinage.
When a tempest blows at sea, the wind may rush over the water at 50 miles an hour; but the waves, excited by other forces, will travel 100 miles an hour faster.
The anchor, a graceful tree with vivid green foliage, is so virulently poisonous that a person can be made seriously ill through having merely touched it by accident.

STILL FAVORED

"Women are now recognized as entitled to all the advantages that men enjoy," said Mr. Meekton's wife.
"Not quite, Henrietta, not quite. A man can get a perfectly satisfactory hat for $3 or $4."

SOMEWHAT OLDER

"Man, your hair is all gray but I don't see a single gray hair in your beard."
"Well, you must remember that my hair is somewhat older than my beard."

ONE TAILOR SHOP DISPLAYS THIS CARD

"We clean and dye for ladies."

JUST SO

"I never liked the parsnip, but if its wine is so darned fine, I may have misjudged a worthy vegetable."

NO MISSES

Father (to Bobby who had just fallen downstairs): "Why, Bobby, did you miss your step?"
Bobby: "No, sir, I hit every one of them."

EVERYBODY WORKS

Mother's in the kitchen,
Washing out the kettles,
Sister's in the pantry,
Taking off the labels,
Father's in the cellar,
Mixing up the hops,
Johnny's on the front porch,
Watching for the cops.

KIDS AND CANOES

Kids and canoes are similar in one respect at least. Both should be paddled.

THE COUNTY FAIR

"Did you win anything at the Kicker County fair?"
"First prize for blooded tractors."
