HUN STRIKE CAUSES LOSS

(By Associated Press.)
DUESSELDORF, Germany, Nov. 27. (By Mail).—With plans for winter food supplies coming in from all over Germany, 400 carloads of potatoes were permitted to freeze in the railroad yards here because of a strike of transport workers. The station warehouses also became congested with goods, and for a time all of the Rhine-Westphalian industry was threatened with great losses on account of the tie-up. The issue centered primarily in the question of wages.

Such Is Fame.

A famous bishop was waiting for his train in an out-of-the-way village when he saw a stranger cycling his askance. Fearing he might be cutting a slight acquaintance, the bishop nodded to the man. "Excuse me, please," said the stranger, "but I think I have seen your picture in the paper once." "Very probably," answered the bishop. "Kin I ask," the stranger inquired respectfully, "what was you cured of?"

MEANING OF THE WORD VEAL

Departments of Agriculture Frequently Called Upon to Decide Between Veal and Beef.

There seems to be marked variation of opinion as to what is meant by the word veal. Ordinarily, when one hears the word uttered, he thinks of the carcass or meat of a young heifer. In most cases this conception of the meaning of the word veal is sufficient and it can be dismissed from the mind without further consideration; but when one is called upon to state just what constitutes veal, there may be some difficulty experienced in determining when a heifer carcass is or is not to be regarded as veal.

Departments of agriculture are sometimes called upon to decide whether or not a rather heavy carcass should be classified as veal or beef and the decision conforms to the conclusion of authorities on the subject, which is as follows:

Calf carcasses weighing less than 300 pounds, with comparatively light-colored, fine-grained flesh, are classified as veal.

COW TESTING PAYS FARMERS

Most Excellent Results Reported by Association in Coos County, New Hampshire.

Coos county, N. H., has a very successful cow-testing association. A report from that district regarding the dollars-and-cents value of the association says: "Many times the testera salary is saved each month."

One farmer in the Coos County association reports a yearly saving of $225 in the feed bill alone. Another with eight cows claims a net gain of $250 a year from the work of the association, and a local cattle dealer says that the tests add $40 per head to the value of good cows.

A farmer near Lancaster offered to sell one of his cows for $75 before testing her. After the test, however, she was not for sale, because during the ten months she made $19 more net profit than his twelve lowest-producing cows combined. These and other figures from the Coos County association show that cow testing may be made to pay big returns. Its educational value is also great.

Before the Introduction of Modern Methods Cows Were Bought and Sold on Outward Appearances.

Cow-testing work is growing rapidly, but it still has room for growth. Less than one per cent of all the dairy cows in the United States have been tested for production. Progressive dairymen say that there should now be at least many times that many cows on test.

ADVANTAGE OF FALL CALVES

Dairy Products Bring About One-Third More Money in Winter Than in Spring Season.

Several reasons why farmers find it more profitable to raise fall calves are given as follows by Prof. C. Larsen of South Dakota State college:

A cow that freshens in the fall will produce about 20 per cent more milk during the year than one that calves in the spring.

Dairy products bring the farmer about a third more money in winter than in spring.

Winter dairying allows of more and cheaper labor after the field work is done.

Winter dairying avoids flies that cut down the milk flow and bother the milk-fed calves.

Calves dropped in the fall will do well under good winter care and when spring arrives they are ready for pasture with the other young cattle. Avoid milking too early in the fall.

BREED UP PROFITABLE HERD

Judicious Selection of Sire and Dam Is Vitally Important—Follow Some System.

In breeding up a dairy herd a judicious selection of both sire and dam is vitally important, and then must be pursued a system of feeding and management suited to the purpose for which the animals are being raised. Many dairymen follow these principles only in part. For instance, there are farms where a comparatively high-priced purchased sire has been purchased, but the owner has paid little or no attention to the possibilities of his cows and the result has naturally been that some of the stock is good and some poor.

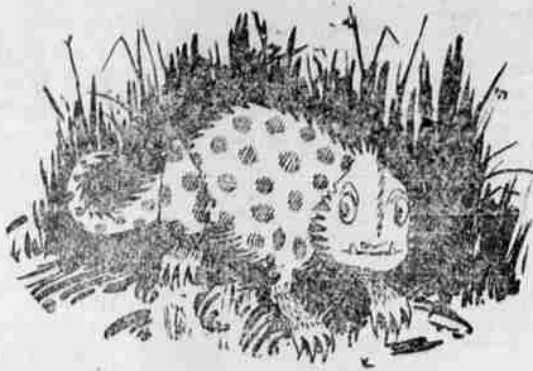

Only one-third of the world's population is white.

YARNS OF THE BIG WOODS.

(Up in the great lonesome woods of the North the old guides have invented many yarns to explain to the tenderfoot from the cities the strange tracks, the weird noises, and all the other new experiences of the great outdoors. Mr. Childs was formerly a game warden in the woods of Northern Wisconsin. The stories which he tells here are stories he collected from the old guides themselves. Twelve will be published. That below is the sixth.)

THE OOMPH

Down by the logging road Mrs. Partridge was sitting on her nest. At the approach of danger she scuttled to the nest and hid in the underbrush. The intruders counted fourteen pretty eggs.

"There's a raspberry patch a bit further down," remarked the guide, "and I think there's another nest near it. Want to take a look?"

The tenderfoot followed him eagerly. There was the nest sure enough, but all the eggs were gone—only a few shells left. The guide shook his head sadly. "It's the oomph's work," he explained. "It's a hard-looking animal, the worst enemy the birds have in nesting season. There's a big bounty on the oomph but he's a shy and hard to get."

"In case you see an animal about as big as a dog, but looking like a cross between a big thorn and a toad with long claws and with sharp spines all along his back and big spots all over him, get him quick. He's an oomph. He goes around hunting birds' nests, and when he finds one he makes a noise deep down in his throat that sounds like 'oomph, oomph.' That's how the old boys get his name."

Western Respect for Women

The best story of the westerner's reverence for women, writes a correspondent of a London paper, "is concerned with the conclusion of a little fight with Indians. The latter got the best of it and the squaws arrived with stone hammers to finish off the wounded. As a squaw thus armed was approaching a half-conscious victim his friend called out to him: 'Look out Bill, there's a lady coming!'"

"Terrible Turk"

Wid and disheveled in appearance, Hassan Nafeen Hassan tried to enter the White House to interview President Harding. Investigators found that he had been housed in his fortress of $2500 and intended to go to Washington for justice. The police are now trying to regain his lost money.
