ENGLISH "TRIPS"
Sometimes, perhaps, we shall all be able to take a voyage. Of course we don't know where it might be, so the English II class is finding several of the things that we should know when taking a trip.

Some are writing of their imaginary trip to the Orient, others to Africa, and South America, and still others to the North. They are using, of course, the information and advice they have received from the steamship lines. In these stories they tell of the preparations made before leaving, such as securing their passage on the boat and arrangements made with regard to the money, which they do not want to carry with them.

In the pamphlets received from the different companies a complete outline of the voyage is made, mentioning the places of interest that are visited and also describing them. These are written as stories, which makes them quite interesting and true.

By the time they are through studying this topic they will all have more knowledge of what a voyage would give them.

The students are working hard trying to get their book reports in before the end of the semester. Some are just beginning to read their books, while others are all through.

The term papers in Physics were handed in Friday. These papers were to be on something of interest to the class. Some were read in class and were very interesting.

At an assembly Friday afternoon the examinations were announced for the coming week of Jan. 16. Mr. Fowler also discussed the attendance for the past month.

The total tardies for the month of fifteen regular days were 78. The total absences for the same month was three hundred sixteen and one-half.

Those neither absent or tardy were boys, 65 or 46 per cent., and the girls 79 or 32 per cent.

After this the meeting was turned over to the student body president. He announced that there would be a basketball game Saturday night, and wanted all the student body to turn out to give their support to the men who were working with only a temporary coach.

We then gave a few yells and left for our seventh period classes.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Luster to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair. Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.
