

BEEF INCREASE NOW EXPECTED

Possible Now to Raise More Market Beef; Department of Agriculture Makes Report.

(By Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Although there are actually fewer beef cattle in the United States at present than there have been in previous years, it is now possible to raise more beef each year than when there were more cattle. This somewhat contradictory statement is explained by the department of agriculture which shows that a larger proportion of beef cows are kept on ranches and farms, and beef cattle are slaughtered at an earlier age than used to be the practice.

In a discussion of the American cattle industry during the last 77 years, the Yearbook of the department for 1921, which has just been published, described the growth and changes of practice in the business. The system of using younger cattle for beef purposes, the Yearbook explains, involves the use of more harvested feed per 100 pounds of beef produced, since a large proportion of the gains in weight are made in the feed lot than was formerly the case when steers were carried four or five seasons on grass.

While the total number of cattle in the country has decreased in recent years, the article states, the situation is not as serious as might appear, since the number of cattle is greater now than in any year from 1896 to 1917. Census figures for 1900 and 1920 show there has been an increase in the percentage of beef calves, heifers, cows and bulls and a decrease in the percentage of steers, especially aged steers. The number of cattle in the country increased 10,200,000 from 1914 to 1919, but during the last three years there has been a decrease of 2,000,000 head. However, the greater proportion of cows at present makes it possible to grow more beef, especially if more of the calves, instead of being slaughtered, are fed out as yearlings.

"That the country can readily respond to a quickened demand for beef, was demonstrated during the war when production was so stimulated that during 1917 and 1918 combined more than one billion pounds of beef were exported, which was 7 per cent of our production and 22 per cent of the exports of the world during the period. The Yearbook declares, "Since about 1907, South America and Australia have been the chief sources of surplus beef."

Americans are eating less beef per capita than formerly, it is stated. The consumption of beef and veal in the United States decreased from 87 pounds per person in 1907 to 60 pounds in 1919. Between the periods of 1907 to 1910 and 1911 to 1912 there has been a decrease in consumption amounting to approximately 20 per cent.

The article includes interesting information to those engaged in the industry, on the variations in demand for different kinds of beef in various cities and in changing seasons. High class hotels, it is noted, want prime, fat and finished beef, while the average housewife wants beef involving less waste. In warm weather the principal demand is for steaks and chops, while the winter trade demands more veal and hanging meat. The orthodox Jewish trade uses only the forequarters, while Gentiles, as a rule, prefer hindquarters of beef.

IMBLER GIVES TO NEAR EAST

IMBLER, Jan. 19.—Mr. Bristol spent Sunday and Monday in Imbler in the interest of the Near East Relief. Sunday he visited both the Methodist and the L. D. S. churches, where he gave some excellent talks. Contributions of over $100 were collected and pledged. On Monday he spoke to the pupils of the school on the Near East situation and in the evening presented three reels of moving pictures entitled "Alicia in Hungary" to a large and appreciative audience. Contributions were made by the school children Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Skages are here visiting relatives in Imbler returned to their home in Wallawa Tuesday.

COMMERCIAL SHORT COURSE

EUGENE, Jan. 19. (Special)—The third annual short course for commercial secretaries which is held under the auspices of the University of Oregon School of Business Administration at Eugene, has been scheduled this year for April 2 to 6. The course is for secretaries of state chambers of commerce and commercial clubs, and between twenty and twenty-five of these officials are expected to enroll.

The course of study is concerned with the latest methods that have proved effective in chamber of commerce work with special reference to Oregon problems. The course is divided into two parts, one part devoted to the problems confronting the large cities, and the second to the problems confronting smaller communities.

As a part of the course of training offered during the short course, the following books have been selected as a suggested reading list for secretaries who will attend the conference: "Economics," "Economics for the General Reader," Henry Clay; "Brevity Book of Economics," Mr. Johnson; "Business Organization," "Principles of Business," Gerstenberg; "Marketing and Distribution," "Principles of Marketing," Clark; or "Elements of Marketing," Cheever; "Psychology—Increasing One's Efficiency in Business," Scott; "Government—Government of the United States," and "Government of American Cities," Munro.
