WOMEN'S CLUB COMING TO ORGANIZE

The Business Women of La Grande to Perfect an Organization on January 26; Reception to Be Held.

On Friday, January 26, the Business Women's club will give a reception to all women coming under the title of "business women" at which time the club rooms will be opened. Mrs. J. T. Richardson, who is at the head of this committee, requests that all who wish to attend communicate with her some time prior.

This club is open to every business woman and everyone is urged to be present at the reception. The rooms committee comprised of Mrs. A. J. Stange, Mrs. G. L. Larson, and Mrs. T. J. Scroggins have inspected the rooms and have planned the decorations for the reception and are making arrangements for a very good time for everyone. The organization committee with Dr. Margaret Ingels as convener have met and the plans for the organization are well worked out and will be put before the public Friday night. The general arrangements of the organization is under the supervision of the Civic committee of the Neighborhood club of which Mrs. George Cochran is convener and anyone wishing information in respect to this club may secure it from her. The program committee for this evening reception are laying plans for a worth while program.

SOLONS WILL BE BUSY IN COMING WEEK

presided over by the regulating department. Now, with the "consolidation" bills before us we see not the elimination of departments, but the curtailing of expenses which the people want, but merely a shifting of title, and establishing of bureaus to take the place of what are now called commissions.

The senate today acted unanimously in favor of the Strayer resolution giving the federal government to build the Three valley irrigation project in Baker and Union counties. Senator Strayer drew his resolution presenting a strong argument for the project and on the floor of the senate he stoutly put forth the merits of that big stretch of country on Lower Powder which, if given a chance will read a multitude of people.

Trot out the orators. This was the first day when oratory came into its own. It was the first day when the old Mark Anthony came into full view. And the oration was the third reading and passage of the Moore bill. The bill was introduced by Senator Garfield and the committee of the United States he taught in all of the schools of the state, both public and private and in the higher institutions of learning as well. The bill has merit and it was a cliché that its passage would be by unanimous vote. But somehow, Feltus air was right this morning for oratory and Senator Strayer led off with a discourse on the bill, to be followed by Senator Moore and Senator Garfield. The bill, augmented by Senator Garfield who spoke with feeling on the subject. Senator Farrell and other senators also gave out their oratory and the air was filled with beautiful words, fictions of voice and patriotic utterances.

Following this bill came the bill to remove the inheritance tax from the Oregon law. Senator Farrell introduced the bill and it was followed by Senator Moore and Senator Garfield. The bill was most meritorious oratory for Senator Farrell, a bachelor of Lake county, amassed a fortune of a million dollars in interior Oregon. His wife's death called him to place that fortune in the Daily Educational Fund to be used for sending the boys and girls of Lake county to college. It is an outstanding act of philanthropy which has no equal in this state and the vote to remove the inheritance tax from this statute was right and proper.

There is a bill on the floor over the proposed "Sovereign" tax. The lobby is gathering and the arguments are being made. The bill is all comes the question of constitutional question and may have some effect on its passage.

Minnesota, we are told, had a revenue tax on iron but the iron ore companies are now before the United States supreme court with the law trying to limit it. There is the argument that severance tax in Oregon will cause Oregon to be a member of a steel trust over Washington and Idaho in favor with a result that the lumber industry will be crippled. This is just pushing the high lights of the case for in addition there is much more being said. The governor is on record for the severance tax question and it is quite apparent that it will come to an issue in this session.

Income tax bills are in the oven and next week they will be spread before the members. There are several bills—some the kind bill which would permit everyone who pays real or personal property to receive credit on his tax except for his state income tax, to the graduated income tax up to fifteen per cent. of the income.

It is needless to say that legislators are going to have something to think about when their bills come out, for there is in mind the best of raising money from business is apparent, but also there is mind that no state can afford to kill off the industry that makes the incomes, neither can it afford to be so drastic that it will starve its business men who are capable of handling big undertakings. This is a common view of some of the complications presented.

The Farmers bill in the house is about ready to pass. It will all have the boys are all there for an every one when that bill comes out the best of the only one member are added which is one quite the majority and a working majority at that.

Representative Woodard has not yet approved the bill being to get an idea of what bills he is steadily gives that he is going to the people with the success. In his questioning the bill, then he sent their wishes and computations to the Multnomah county representative.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Jan. 19.—(By Mail)—Today's legislative session is being exactly dealt to this legislative assembly by being so slow to get in session. It is coming from different angles and will have a good effect, for all criticism has its virtue.

Without wishing to make any excuses, it must be admitted that the session is proceeding thus far without program, and one may swear at the state-makers all they please, but without a state or a program no organization gets very far.

Older legislators have been laying back waiting for something to happen. Men who in the past have taken the reins and directed the drawing the year on the new forces which came fresh from the people at this election. These also have been waiting, and as a result the session has practically nothing before it of great consequence.

But cheer up, it is coming. The program is going to be made shortly. There will be some bills introduced. The few part of next week that will give everyone plenty of opportunity to use the power of their vote. They will not be "catch" bills to compete picture shows to sell no standing room or close on Sunday; neither will they be bills to bring down the public utility lobbies, but they will be constructive tax measures. They will be bills intended to grant some relief needed by the people—bills drawn with the idea of changing a lot of things in state affairs.

Today is not so far as legislation is concerned because National Prohibition Director Hynes is here making a speech to both houses on the question of moonshine and other ill, which, followed with early adjournment for the week-end, makes the day a total loss to the law-making features.

On Monday the fight will come up in the senate over the Garb bill. The House has passed the bill taking money from all teachers, forcing the wearing of plain citizens' clothes when teaching in the public schools. The senate is heartily in favor of the measure and the bill will pass. But the difference of opinion arises in the prohibition for violation of the act. The house bill provides for fine, imprisonment, cancellation of a teacher's certificate and prosecution by the school board. The senate education committee has endorsed the bill but demands by a majority report that the punishment be confined to cancellation of the teacher's certificate and the action be heard prosecution, eliminating the fine and jail sentence. The minority report will be that the bill shall pass as it came over from the house. Of course a motion will be made to adopt the minority report in place of the majority report and then the skirmish will start. Many try to believe that this will be the long look for the up-of the Klan and anti-Klan. This is not correct, for the Klan is not prominent in this session. There are a number of legislators who owe their election to the Patriotic Societies of Oregon, which is very different in many ways from the Klan. Votes on the Garb bill will not indicate that one is for or against the Klan and there is no certainty that it will show a line-up in the Patriotic Societies as the bill has been considered on its merits and it is expected the senate will vote with that mind.

The attempt to put the Oregon Trail campaign in the land by amending the senate bill so that the Columbia Highway would begin at Emathia, instead of The Dalles, finally went down to defeat before the House committee on Roads and Highways and now the bill will pass an originally drawn. It cannot be lost in the senate while it lasted, but peace finally returned and the committee acted with its usual good sense in this matter.

Astoria's plea for relief was heard last night by the Ways and Means committee and it was a wonderful plea from a broke and bankrupt city. Not a person at that hearing could help signing deeply for the horrible plight which Astoria is in from the big fire. But we can't let a broke state do for a broke city remains to be seen. In the language of Alex La Follette, who said: "My heart bleeds for Astoria; I can't think of Astoria and ever think of wanting and I want to help Astoria and will help Astoria as long as it does not cost the state any money to do so." Alex's humorous and statement but nevertheless it did.

BUD THEISON ON HOOP TEAM

That La Grande turns out some star athletes is beyond question a surety. In the past football season three La Grander, Captain Lacey, Judy Ash and Moss Lyman, made the Aggie varsity football squad. Lacey was unanimously the choice on the northwest mythical eleven and was named on the all-coast all-stars by many. Judy Ash was also named on the northwest team by many writers. Incidentally Cliff Horstman earned his letter on the rookie grid team.

That is past history. Football is past and basketball is again with us. Still La Grande representatives at college continue to give themselves into the limelight with their stellar performances and both the Aggie varsity and the rookie team has a La Grande man on their personnel. Moss Lyman is a regular on the varsity quintette and Bud Theison, picked on the state all-star team when in high school, is starring on the rookie five.

Bud Going Good. In the first game of the season for the Aggie yardlings, Bud carried away the lion's share of the honors. Scoring eight out of the team's ten points, he showed his start to good advantage and was the only man on the first team that was mentioned in the Portland Times. He said "The game was the roughest played by either team this year and injuries were frequent. Theison of the college team was the only one able to connect with the basket regularly." He is playing guard. The final score of the game, which was at Portland against Jefferson high, was 18 to 10 in favor of the Jeffersonians.

TRAPSHOOTERS EVENT SUNDAY

So much sport was manifested in the last shoot held at the Country club that the management decided to make this sport one of the permanent features of the club. The trap has now been moved to a better location and so that it can be used the year around if it is wished to do so. In addition a platform is being built so that spectators will not have to stand in the mud in wet weather. A sheltered member is being constructed so that spectators and the traps may be a place to get out of the weather and a room is also being built in which to keep supplies. A stove is being put in and a walk built from the club house to the traps so that the traps can be used at any time.

It is hoped to have all the new improvements finished in time for the next shoot, which will start on Saturday afternoon. A large number of traps and spectators are expected to be on hand.

UNION BEATS RAMBLERS 34-16

Last night was a hard one for local basketball teams. For not only did the high school jumpers lose to Joseph, but the Ramblers, a new member of the La Grande city team, went to Union and lost to that team by a score of 34 to 16. The game was fast, rough and full and although fighting hard, the local team was unable to overcome a Union team that was up to the game.

Satisfies More Than Sentiment

Much candy is selected because of its popular name or on account of its attractive container. This is especially true of candies which are bought for gift purposes. But, when are selected there's something more than sentiment involved in the purchase. Their fine quality is universally acknowledged. Freshness and purity are always guaranteed because of the frequent shipments which we receive direct from the factory.

Let your next candy purchase be a Box of Harry's. We also handle an excellent line of Bulk Candies.
