PADDOCK READY FOR CONQUESTS

(By Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24.—Charles W. Paddock, world's champion sprinter, has begun practice for his reappearance on the cinder path as a member of the University of Southern California track and field team at the Southern California Athletic Union relay carnival at Occidental college here February 17.

Although he did not run last season for U. S. C., and had comparatively little practice, he is said to be in good condition now. Golfing each day and practicing for meets at Hawaii and at Santa Barbara, Cal., last year kept him in form, Paddock said.

He announced he planned to continue light training at his home in Pasadena for a few weeks then join the U. S. C. team in its daily workouts. He will train under the direction of Coach Dean Cromwell and is expected to be the Trojan's biggest point winner.

Paddock announced a year ago he would retire from active competition but criticism for not entering eastern meets last summer and failure of the National A. A. U. to recognize times made by him at Hawaii and Santa Barbara are believed to have caused him to change his mind.

Besides running at several Pacific coast meets this season it is expected Paddock will accompany the Trojan squad to eastern points among them the Drake relays, the Penn relay carnival, the national collegiate at Chicago and the inter-collegiate at Harvard stadium. There is also a possibility that a few Pacific coast athletes will run at the University of Paris meet in France, and Paddock may be among them.

In the relay carnival at Occidental next month, Paddock will be in competition with several men who run the 100-yard dash in less than .0 seconds. They include, Clifford Argue, of Occidental, Charles Daggs of Pomona, and Howard Torkelson and Yale Martz, both of U. S. C.

BIG PICTURE IS FILMED IN GREAT WHITE NORTH

"The Valley of Silent Men" Photographed in the Heart of the Canadian Rockies.

Frank Borzage, the celebrated director of Cosmopolitan Productions went with his entire company to the Canadian Rockies, where he filmed James Oliver Curwood's famous story, "The Valley of Silent Men," amid the scenes which the author described so vividly in his novel.

Unless studio reports and the evidence of many beautiful photographs taken on location are misleading, Mr. Borzage has not only "Nature Illustrated" Mr. Curwood's thrilling romance of the Great White North, but has scored another Cosmopolitan success, comparable with his "Humoresque."

Of course, this romance of the northern wilds which comes to the Arden theatre Thursday, is a striking contrast to the crowded East Side, the bright lights of Broadway shown in "Back Pay," or the humors of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," which Mr. Borzage also made for Cosmopolitan Productions. But the same meticulous attention to detail and broad grasp of his subject which characterized Mr. Borzage's work in the big city studio, follow him into the great outdoors.

With a Cosmopolitan cast headed by Alma Rubens, as the French Canadian heroine of the Curwood story, and with Lew Cody as the heroic corporal of the Royal Mounted Police, Mr. Borzage spent twelve weeks in the Canadian Rockies, from Banff, Alberta, they followed the trail of the story to the veritable "Valley of Silent Men" which Mr. Curwood described so realistically. They lived in log cabins, camped with the Stoney tribe of Indians—some of whom Mr. Borzage enlisted in the company; shot the rapids of the Kipewa river, which runs into the Ottawa about 225 miles west and 100 miles north of Montreal.

They climbed the snow-clad peaks and skidded over the glaciers of the Canadian Rockies. No city-bred director could have overcome the obstacles which faced Frank Borzage on every hand. He is an American born, and was reared among the mountains. Possibly his activity helped him to realize the Curwood story on the screen in the spirit and amid the scenes in which the author wrote it.

AT SHERRY'S TO-DAY ONLY. "Hate" A Picture of Many Thrills.

"Hate" is a picture of many thrills. In Alice Lake's new picture, "Hate," there is provided every feature that cannot fail to hold the interest of the most critical of movie-goers. It is a tale of intrigue, suspense and the characters of vivid interest, whose clash of objectives make a drama without a dull moment.

It is a story of that strata of society which is just beyond the pale of an "exclusive" and a "pretty little play" girl whose attentions she has accepted. He is found dead in his apartment and evidence is discovered which incriminates a man whom the audience has seen just mental in sending to prison "Babe" Lennon, the character played by Alice Lake, knows that suspect is innocent and, outraged by the vindictiveness of the law, she fights to save the innocent man. She becomes involved in a romance which provides a pleasing flavor of heart interest.

Alice Lake gives, perhaps, the finest impersonation of her career. The poignancy with which she expresses the bewilderment and sense of frustration as she fights alone against seemingly overwhelming odds, marking Miss Lake as an actress of increasing emotional powers.

Conrad Nagel, as the prosecuting attorney, adds another to his list of convincing portraits. Others in the cast are Harry Northrup, Charles Gray and John Ince.

OREGON SENATOR MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR EUROPEAN ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

One of the soundest speeches made during the debate of the Borah amendment to the naval bill authorized by Senatorizing an international economic conference was made by Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon. Mr. McNary is a senator who does not consume very much time in the senate debates, but at such times as he has something worth while to contribute to the discussion. It would facilitate the business of the senate if more senators were like him in this respect. I regard Senator McNary as one of the strongest and most useful men in the senate.

Discussing the proposed economic conference authorized by the Borah amendment, which was withdrawn after assurance had been given by the Republican senate leaders that the movement for such a conference, Mr. McNary voiced the views of a number of senators who have felt ever since the ending of the war that this country should not remain aloof from European affairs merely because it intends to adhere to its traditional policy of non-interference in European politics. Mr. McNary made this point clear in the following language:

"In my humble opinion, the amendment offered by the able senator from Idaho (Mr. Borah) is limited to operate only in the field of international economics and can not be construed to imply any obligation calculated to involve any aggressive or defensive military action, or to entangle this nation in any political maelstrom. The only charge laid upon the conference is the duty of considering the economic problems now confronting the world, followed by the expression of a hope that some understanding or arrangement may be reached providing for the restoration of trade and the establishment of the finances of the world on a solid foundation."

The value of such a conference to the farmer was emphasized by Senator McNary, who declared that the "crucial and unfortunate plight of the farmer is due to the fact that he is smothering in a surplus of agricultural products. A strong, brisk foreign market, such as he is entitled to enjoy," the senator continued.

"would lift the farmer from impending ruin to a position where he could meet his obligations and leave him a fair profit for his laborious work and his investment."

Senator McNary voiced another view shared by senators who had supported the Lodge reservations to the treaty of Versailles in the hope that it would result in the ratification of the treaty and not in its defeat by its supposed Democratic friends.

Holding this view, Senator McNary said he could not persuade himself to oppose any conference looking to a better understanding among the nations and to restoration of economic stability among them. In this view, it may be said, a large majority of his colleagues on the Republican side of the senate share, and whatever steps President Harding and Secretary Hughes may take to this end will meet with their hearty approval. —By A. Where thickness of a Hair Equals a Mile

THE hair of a human head averages from two to three thousandths of an inch, and if motor service shop work is based on accuracy so coarse as a "hair's breadth," only poor results can be obtained.

Automobiles may be designed alike, and look the same, yet one, because of precise fits, has more power, speed and less vibration. When piston and cylinder bores are held to limits of one thousandth plus or minus, it means that often a piston .001 undersize runs into a bore which is .001 oversize; and, in case of a three-inch piston, instead of having a wall clearance of .003 .001 for each inch of piston diameter) it has .006 and becomes an "oil-pumper"—an error of less than an average hair's breadth, yet, the results could have been no worse had it been a "mile."

Avoid errors as broad as a hair and for closely fitted pistons and perfectly ground cylinders have your repairsmen bring your cylinder block to us for regrinding and piston assembling.
