SHERRY'S-TODAY ONLY CORINNE GRIFFITH SHINES IN PICTURE OF MINING COUNTRY

Thrilling Drama of Railroad Construction Presents Star in New Type of Role.

In "The Single Track," Corinne Griffith forsakes for the nonce the life of luxury and ease of a debutante or young society matron and plunges into the life of a Western settler with all its attendant frontier customs and excitement.

Known as one of the most attractively gowned women of the screen, Miss Griffith dons cañon and sun-bonnet, khaki and sombrero and plays what is for her a new type of character.

Only in the earlier scenes laid in New York City does she have an opportunity to display her art in wearing beautiful gowns.

"The Single Track" takes its title from a spur of a railroad that, when completed, will connect the heroine's mine, all that remains of a wasted fortune, with the main line. It must be finished before the option on the right of way expires. Rival interests employ foul means to cause delays and the fair young mine owner goes to her property personally to take charge.

The picture is spectacular to a degree. For over a month more than 200 workmen were building a half-mile single track spur on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad in the Catskills near Archville, and a high trestle over a river.

As soon as this was completed, the scenes were shot, the trestle and a portion of the track destroyed by dynamite just after a locomotive driven by the heroine passes in safety.

There are several other big scenes, equally as spectacular in the production. Comedy showing, "Hello Judge."

SHERRY'S SUNDAY & MONDAY SUPERB SETTINGS BIG FEATURE OF "ABOVE ALL LAW"

Indian Architecture of Highest Quality Vest Scenes with Majesty.

Many remarkable settings, picturing Oriental splendor of architecture at its best, were prepared for the Paramount picture, "Above All Law." Several of the best known screen players of Europe are assembled in the cast.

Among the sets which are especially noteworthy is the Temple of the Unknown God, a huge Buddha, forty feet high, seated on an immense throne. The general effect of the scene is one of immensity and grandeur seldom seen on the screen.

The palace of the reigning prince is a marvel of architecture and structural finish. Not a single detail needed to make the illusion perfect has been overlooked by Joe May, the producer of the photoplay. The tropical gardens were arranged by expert gardeners and their beauty and vastness will amaze every lover of flowers and shrubbery.

The Hall of a Thousand Pillars is a gigantic creation, the pillars being of great dimensions. The great tower, the tigers' den and the score of other sets will impress every spectator by their massiveness, harmony of design and beauty of finish.

"Above All Law" is a powerful picture. The story deals with an architect who is summoned to India by a reigning prince to construct a great tomb. But when he learns that the tomb is intended for the prince's wife, who is yet alive and of whom he is insanely jealous, he refuses to have anything to do with the affair. The prince is insistent and causes the architect to be imprisoned. The latter's fiancée traces him to India, and they have many

Where thickness of a Hair Equals a Mile

THE hair of a human head averages from two to three thousandths of an inch, and, if motor service shop work is based on accuracy so coarse as a "hair's breadth," only poor results can be obtained.

Automobiles may be designed alike, and look the same, yet one, because of precise fits, has more power, speed and less vibration. When pistons and cylinder bores are held to limits of one thousandth plus or minus, it means that often a piston .001 undersize goes into a bore which is .001 oversize; and, in case of a three-inch piston, instead of having a wall clearance of .003-.001 for each inch of piston diameter, it has .005 and becomes an "oil-pumper"—an error of less than an average hair's breadth, yet, the results could have been no worse had it been a "mile."

Avoid errors as broad as a hair and for closely fitted pistons and perfectly ground cylinders have your repairsmen bring your cylinder block to us for regrinding and piston assembling.
