Vets to Get Additional Compensation, New Rule

Many beneficiaries of the U. S. Veterans' bureau will be paid additional compensation as result of a new ruling announced by L. C. Joseph, Pacific northwest manager of the bureau.

The act of congress, under which benefits are disbursed, presents awards on account of dependent relatives of veterans from being made effective more than one year prior to the date when claim for additional compensation for such dependents was made. Mr. Joseph stated many veterans who had, while in training under the federal board for vocational education, claimed additional training pay for dependents, failed until long afterwards to file with the veterans' bureau or the bureau of war risk insurance, any claim for additional compensation on account of dependents.

Mr. Joseph stated that the new ruling permits a claim for additional training pay to be construed as a claim for additional compensation, also, and, if presented on or before August 9, 1921, to be considered filled with the veterans' bureau as of that date because the vocational training records were then placed under the jurisdiction of the bureau. As a consequence, Mr. Joseph explained, additional compensation for dependent relatives may, in a considerable number of cases, be extended back to August 9, 1921, and where that can be done the beneficiaries affected will be notified checks to cover the additional amounts accrued under this new interpretation of the law.
