

PORTSMEN TO GIVE FARMERS SQUARE DEAL

(By Associated Press)
 (CONCORD, N. H., Mar. 2.—The portsmen sometimes have hard words for the farmer who posts "no trespassing" signs along a trout brook in a tract of woodland that promises good hunting. The farmer feels righteous indignation against the sportsman or hunter who carelessly and maliciously breaks down his fences and stone walls, and leaves the cattle get out of the pasture. To remedy this situation the New Hampshire Fish and Game league has been organized to promote better sport and better relations between farmer and sportsman in this state.

The object of the league is declared to be "to encourage, assist and advise the state authorities in protection and protection, to obtain proper spirit of cooperation between the land-owner and the real sportsman, and to lessen and do away with the deprivations and lawlessness of the irresponsible hunter and sportsman." It links together 47 sporting clubs scattered throughout the state.

In announcing its purposes, the league points out that the entire expense of planting millions of game fish and distributing many rabbits and pheasants by the state game commission in the last two years was covered by hunting and fishing license fees and fines paid by violators of the fish and game laws. The league estimates that the more than 3,000 non-residents who paid for license in the year ended June 30 set, brought into the state fully $1,472,800.

"The hotel keeper, the garage man, the farmer, the roadside store, the sporting camp and in fact everybody gets a share of this," says the league announcement. "Slightly over four dollars each to every resident of the state. Is this worth having? Do you want a share in helping? Law violations are to be stopped and a friendly understanding promoted. The league stands for a square deal, links of the other fellow, and good citizenship above everything else."

The state fish and game commissioner is made an ex-officio member of the executive committee of the league.

Alien Language Tangle May Go To Supreme Court

HONOLULU, Feb. 2. (By Mail)—The legal tangle involving alien language schools in the territory may be carried to the United States supreme court for final judgment. It has been indicated, as the result of the decision of Judge J. J. Banks of the circuit court, who held that the territorial regulations, which require that the first and second grades of American public schools, or their equivalent, be attended by alien children, before they are permitted to attend alien schools. Judge Banks held that the department had exceeded the authority granted by the legislature, in promulgating this order, and made permanent an injunction which had been obtained by the Palama Japanese school against its enforcement.

Judge Banks held, however, that the section of the department which provides that all new text books used in elementary alien schools should be based upon the principle that the pupil's normal medium of expression is English, is valid. He amended the injunction to exempt this portion of the regulation from its terms.

In dealing with the Palama school's counsel argument that the regulation was unconstitutional and contravened the treaty between the United States and Japan, Judge Banks' ruling held that the legislation, under which the regulation was issued, was constitutional and did not violate the treaty, but that the portion of the regulation against which he issued an injunction, was not within the authority of the department.

"This section determines the qualifications, either mental or otherwise, of the pupils who would be permitted to attend alien language schools," he ruling said. "It determines that no one shall attend a foreign school who has not attained the mental development that advances him beyond certain grades of an American public school.

"If the department has this authority it also has the authority to prescribe that no person shall attend a foreign language school who can not read and understand the constitution of the United States or who is not trained the age of 21 years. No one would seriously contend that such requirements were within the authority conferred upon the department to prescribe the course of study.

"A large proportion of the children born in Hawaii descend from parents that is not American either by birth or naturalization and that is unfamiliar with the genius and spirit of our institutions and unable to speak the language in which our laws are written and our government is conducted. The primary speech of these children is in a foreign tongue and many of them reach the age, when by law they are required to attend school, without being able to read or even speak with any degree of proficiency the English language.

"They are potential members of our great electorate and in time will acquire the sacred right to participate in the government of our country. If they are to exercise this high privilege with intelligence, and under a solemn sense of obligation to the ideals of democracy, it is imperative that through the medium of our established language, they be taught the history of our political and social struggles and triumphs and the basic principles upon which our government rests.

"Since this cannot be accomplished in their domestic environment, it must be done through the agency of educational institutions. The initial preparation and equipment of these coming citizens for the intelligent and patriotic discharge of their sacred trust must therefore devolve upon those whose profession it is to conduct and teach in our public and private schools. The legislature, in lending its aid to this worthy endeavor, has ample power, within constitutional bounds, to adopt such reasonable measures as will stimulate the study and encourage the mastery of the language in which our literature is expressed. Therefore the act of the legislature is not forbidden by the constitution of the United States nor the treaty between the United States and Japan."

The Hawaii Nippo, Japanese language newspaper, commenting upon the decision, urged that the entire school question be reported to the imperial parliament of Japan and that it be placed clearly in the record of the parliament for reference.

RANCOR SEEN IN THE RUHR

Smouldering Hatred on All Sides; Animosity to Foreigners Displayed in the Ruhr Valley.

ESSEN, Feb. 4. (By Mail)—To be a millionaire, every morning after a short visit to the bank and retire every night a pauper; hand the boot-black 1,000 marks for a shoeshine; pay for a modest lunch a sum that in 1914 would have been considered an adequate yearly bourgeois income; part with the pre-war price of an entire barrel of beer in order to be served with a small glass of Pilsener, are some of the daily experiences of foreign observers of the occupation of the Ruhr.

But smouldering hatred and bitter rancor on all sides, it concealed animosity toward all foreigners; petty pin pricks under cover of obsequious obedience, and a deep spirit of revenge, bring one back to the fact that this region is under that most hateful regime: "military occupation."

"Let me have a couple of millions," the common request of acquaintances to whom one would hesitate to lend five dollars in America.

"Dirty swine of a Frenchman!" was the salute that greeted an American correspondent when he came out of the post office the other day, conversing in French with some of his Paris colleagues. The Germans never make a mistake about spotting a foreigner, and to them all foreigners are French; therefore hateful.

An American had occasion to run down to Cologne the other day, and

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, fever, trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness, and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalping, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.
