COLLEGE DIGS IN EGYPTIAN KINGLY ABODE

University of Pennsylvania Busily Digging Near the Tomb of Tutankhamen.

(By Associated Press)
PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 16.—The University of Pennsylvania's Egyptian expedition, which has been delving into buried history at the entrance of the Valley of the Kings, where the tomb of Tutankhamen was recently found, is preparing to move to a cooler climate to continue searching for bits of information relating to the activities of men in past ages.

The university is now conducting four expeditions. One is in the Valley of the Kings, another at Memphis, which was the oldest capital of Egypt; a third in Palestine, and another in Babylonia, where, in connection with the expedition of the British Museum, an ancient temple believed to have been built 3,000 years before the birth of Christ was discovered. Announcement of the finding of this temple was recently made. Inscriptions were found showing that King Nebuchadnezzar repaired the place during his reign in the sixth century B. C.

Work Pleasant.
The university has arranged the work of her excavators so that when the hot season comes in one place they move to another, thus assuring almost continuous effort.

The work now coming to a close is at Thebes in an area adjoining the concession of Lord Carnarvon. During the two seasons of digging at Thebes, several tombs have been discovered constructed in the same way as that of Tutankhamen, but all of them open and looted. The objects found in each were not of interest to roblers, such as canopic jars, ushabtis, inscriptions and papyri.

In the last named class of objects a really notable discovery was made at the close of last season when two sealed pottery cylinders were found within the entrance chamber of a tomb which contained rolls of papyrus. These were in a perfect state of preservation. On the outside of each roll was a docket written in ancient Greek, and upon examination the papyri proved to be Demotic documents dating from 315 B. C. to 255 B. C. They are mostly contracts, and contain the business transactions of a family during the period of years which they covered. These papyri are now being translated in the university museum.

Tombs Discovered.
All of the tombs discovered on the museum's concession were of officials of the government of Thebes who wished to be buried near the kings and whose tombs are therefore found in close proximity to the royal resting-places.

At the same time that the university museum is working this concession at Thebes it is also excavating at Memphis, fourteen miles above Cairo, where the museum expedition discovered several years ago the royal palace of Merenptah, an extensive structure covering a large area and enclosing numerous courts. The floors of this temple are found 25 feet below the surface of the ground. The lower walls, and sometimes doorways and parts of columns, are found standing.

One of the interesting discoveries made at this palace is the head of a life size statue of Akhenaton, the father-in-law of Tutankhamen. The features are exquisitely modeled, and the sensitive face is rendered in a wonderfully lifelike manner.

The throne-room of the Merenptah palace, especially the dark, stony rich sculpture and elaborate use of color. The ornaments and hieroglyphic inscriptions on the columns, and the stone-work surrounding the doorways, are inlaid with beautiful blue faience. Surrounding the throne room are dressing rooms, retiring rooms, and a bathroom which originally had running water.

Excavation here is still in progress and its completion is expected to throw much light on the domestic and official life of the Pharaohs.

Memphis was the capital of Egypt from the earliest times down to about 2600 B. C. Then the Pharaohs moved their capital south to Thebes, which arose to great splendor. Herodotus referred to the hundred-gates of Thebes. This city remained the capital until Alexander the Great founded the new capital at Alexandria, except for that brief interval when Akhenaton built his new capital at Tell-el-Amarna in order that he might start everything in Egypt afresh; religion, art, architecture and government. His interesting experiment lasted for about a generation, or until Tutankhamen restored the old religion, reversed the policy of his father-in-law, changed his name for Tutankhamen to Tutankhamun as a symbol of his reversion and went back to Thebes as the seat of his government.

Merenptah, who is regarded by most authorities as the Pharaoh of the Exodus, reigned 1225 to 1235 B. C., or about 125 years after Tutankhamen.

FINDS GOLD IN A PUBLIC PARK

Millions Held to Be Value of Hidden Wealth in Los Angeles Scenic Hills.

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Mar. 16.—Los Angeles could follow the example of Long Beach, whose municipal treasury is swollen with oil royalties, and become a "taxless city" by opening Griffith's park's scenic hills to the exploitation of gold mining interests, according to business men who recently sought mining concessions in the park which lies in the foothills of Hollywood.

At least $200,000,000 in gold could be taken from the Griffith Park hills, the applicants for concessions contended, citing the discovery of gold nuggets in one of the ravines of the preserve as evidence that its slopes were well salted down with precious metal.

However, an opinion handed down by the city attorney to the effect that the terms under which the city obtained the park prohibit its use for any commercial purpose, makes it unlikely that the purported hidden hoard of gold will be disturbed.

UTILITIES EXTEND LINES

SEASIDE, Ore., Mar. 15.—Public utilities companies providing power and telephone service for this city are making extensions in south Seaside of lines along both sides of Seventh street into territory that never has been supplied. Both the Pacific Power & Light company and the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company are running the wires from Beaghtown south to Holiday, a distance of 2 1/2 blocks.

The power company also is making a 2000-foot extension at Gearhart, now under construction.

Buried Alive in Maryland Well

For 28-hours Maynard Easton (inset), young well-digger of Savage, Md., was entombed more than 20 feet below the surface at the bottom of a well which caved in while he was at work. Morphine and coffee was passed down to him while rescuers labored to save him. When rescued, he was broken and he was unconscious.

BAKER BOARD ELECTS HEAD

Charles DeNeffe is Named As President of the Baker County Chamber of Commerce.

BAKER, Mar. 15.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Baker County Chamber of Commerce held this afternoon following the weekly luncheon, Charles K. DeNeffe was elected chairman to succeed F. A. Phillips. Joseph Stoddard was elected vice president; Horace Ryder, treasurer, and Walter E. Meacham, secretary.

Mr. DeNeffe, of the firm of Howland DeNeffe clothing company, for a number of years. He has taken an active part in the activities of the chamber during his residence here, always ready to give of his time and energies for the good of the community. During the past year as vice president he was called upon to act as president much of the time, and his election is just recognition of his services.

Mr. Stoddard has been a director of the chamber the past 15 years, and but for his modesty would have served as president before this. His work with the chamber has been constructive, and a great assistance in promoting its welfare.

Horace Ryder has served as treasurer many years, and as director has been one of the leaders in keeping the organization in the front of activities in the state.

Walter E. Meacham will complete 10 years as secretary of the chamber in June. He is probably the oldest chamber secretary in the northwest in years of service. It is due to his untiring efforts, perhaps more than any one person, that the Baker chamber has been brought to be recognized as among the leading organizations of the kind in the entire northwest.

COLLEGES NOW USE SPANISH

Spanish Language Is Making Great Headway in the United States Educational Institutions.

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 16.—More than 56,000 persons are studying Spanish in 404 out of the 612 universities and colleges listed by the United States Bureau of Education, according to a report submitted to the Governing Board of the Pan American Union by the assistant director in charge of the section of education, Francisco J. Yanez.

The report points out the constant increase of students of Spanish in this country, the total given not including normal or secondary schools where the study of Spanish is obligatory. Columbia University heads the list with 3,000 students, followed by the University of Texas with 1,640 and the University of Illinois with 1,342. Altogether, eight universities have over 1,000 students in Spanish. There were practically no Spanish courses in any of them five years ago.

Interchange of professors with the Latin American Universities and scholarships for Latin American students are among the measures proposed by Senor Yanez as part of a comprehensive plan to encourage a closer co-operation between the higher institutions of learning of this country and Latin America. Already committees of teachers are being organized through his efforts in the Latin American countries as a central information office for the students and teachers who wish to come to the United States.

Before the war virtually all Latin America sent its students and teachers to the schools and colleges of Europe but a reaction in favor of this country took place, the number of Latin American students in the United States having multiplied several times since 1919.

GIVE BEGGARS A JOB, IS PLEADED

(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Mar. 16.—All street beggars in Los Angeles are professional mendicants and there is not a single case of need among them, according to the Los Angeles Social Service commission, which has opened its drive against begging on the streets with a plea to the public to "meet them with jobs."

Sixteen large charitable institutions and numerous smaller relief organizations, according to the commission, make it unnecessary for those in distress to beg on the street, but the professional mendicants prefer the easier and more profitable method of appealing to public sympathy on the sidewalks.
