WENT ABOUT DOING GOOD:

Justice for the Spanish War Boys

We notice a complaint from a San Francisco war veteran to the effect that this country seems to have lost sight of the boys who served the flag when Dewey sank the Spanish fleet and the long months thereafter.

The complaint is quite proper, for it is very apparent that the boys who went to war in 1898 have largely been overlooked. That they were made of good stuff no one will doubt; that they fought a good fight is a matter of history; that they returned home weakened by the tropical climate and many of them have never been men of physical strength since is well known to everyone.

The Spanish war boys were a patient lot of soldiers. They have borne the lack of attention without murmur except now and then in rare instances, but this does not take away the nation's duty and obligation to them. They are entitled to thorough consideration.

Riveting Safety First

It was left up to the ever present wisdom of the Pendleton boosters to rivet safety first and make it air tight and non-skiddable for the Round-Up committee in charge of the big wild west show this year has issued a guarantee to the public that is both novel and genuine.

Taking no chances on the weather, the Round-Up bunch has underwritten the annual show, which occurs in September, by putting up a guarantee of $20,000 in cash or equivalent to guarantee the show in all its splendor whether the weather is good or bad.

That is what we call playing absolutely fair with the public and it shows that misfortune, should it happen along, cannot throttle nor deteriorate the great wild west drama, which has become one of the west's great entertainment features.

Cutting Up Away From Home

A Boston man of high standing in his community went to New York at intervals and "cut up" with the fairer sex. He had what he thought no doubt was a good time and would then return to his home town to again be a dignified citizen.

But, like everyone who tries to play the double game there came a time when his foot slipped and he is now a chief witness in the murder of a pretty New York girl.

Those thing cannot be followed without publicity sooner or later, and when publicity comes doubtless that old Boston man will agree with the old axiom that "an old fool is the worst fool of all."

A Good Choice

Our guess is that Governor Pierce has made a good selection in the appointment of H. B. Van Duzen, of Portland, on the highway commission. Inasmuch as Mr. Yeon had resigned, although many will regret very much to see him leave this work, the governor, we believe, has filled the place with an able, public spirited man who is big enough to act for the entire state.

A strange thing is happening in the Willamette valley. Merchants in the different towns are banding together to support the Oregon Electric as against the truck lines, which are eating the very heart out of the railroad from Portland to Eugene. The principle is absolutely right for the Oregon Electric cannot continue to operate against its unfair competition. The Willamette valley real estate would suffer a slump in value if that railroad has to go out of business and the merchants of that district are smart enough to know it.

Geraldine Farrar in asking for a divorce from her husband, who has a name but no one knows or cares what it is, is accusing Lorna Ambler with stealing her man. From the newspaper pictures of Lorna, we believe Geraldine may have some grounds for accusation.

Senator Hiram Johnson visited the big gambling resorts in Europe, saw the volume of business being done over the gaming tables, and then wondered why Europe could not help herself some, rather than send daily appeals to Uncle Sam for aid.

So, when all things are considered, the best advice Oregon can give Lloyd George, and Oregon is surely in position to give advice on this subject, is to plug along and do the best you can.

The Ad Club has mapped out a comprehensive and sensible program for work during the coming year. Now the thing to do is to all fly at it and carry out the program.

Club, co-operates with the Neighborhood Club and the Legion in the planting of 270 trees along the Victory Way at some future time. President Larison, following the Ad Club's assent, appointed a committee of five, consisting of A. W. Nelson, chairman, C. E. Short, Bruce Dennis, W. H. Bohnenkamp and A. E. Pryke, to assist the movement.

In brief, the plan to be followed is as follows: A half holiday will be declared and the city will turn out en masse to celebrate the opening of the Victory Way with an appropriate program, of which the planting of the trees, which will enhance the scenic aspect of the driveway to a marked extent, will form an important part.

Winterbottom Speaks.
A. E. Pryke, chairman of the day, presided at the luncheon today and introduced Captain Winterbottom, of the Salvation Army, who delivered an address preliminary to adjournment, in which he told of the aims, ideals, purpose and achievements of the Salvation Army in a forceful manner. "To make life sweeter and brighter, and to help those who are needful," was his expression of the aims of the organization, which made such a commendable showing during the recent World War in regards to their welfare work among the soldiers over there. Following the adjournment, the members of the Ad Club, and members of the Salvation Army who were guests at the luncheon, assembled in front of the Red Cross Drug store and had their pictures taken.

The meeting today was livened by several musical numbers, among them being two delightful piano solos by Miss Mildred Lovett and a selection by the Salvation Army Brigade, both instrumental and vocal. The next meeting of the Ad Club will be held in the K. of P. hall with C. J. Black as chairman.

TRUST FUND EXECUTED
LOS ANGELES, March 27.—William S. Hart, movie star, accused by a Boston young woman of being the father of her child, executed a trust to pay $50 per month for the infant's support, although he denied the woman's statement, according to Asa Keys, chief deputy district attorney. The accusation was made December 6th, 1918. Hart declined to offer any comment.

MOONSHINERS ROUT OFFICERS

HEPPNER, March 27.—A posse headed by Paul McDuffee, of the sheriff's office, today started out after four moonshiners who late yesterday routed the deputy sheriff, Chidsey, and district attorney in a gun battle in Juniper Canyon. Chidsey and Notson were forced to call for reinforcements when their ammunition was exhausted.

ishment of a suitable system for the distribution of water upon the grounds.

The Boy Scout authorities of Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho were also invited by the association to confer with the officers relative to a Boy Scout summer camp, for which they are willing to tender the ground and its equipment and facilities after the first of July.

A great many inquiries have been received from people living as far west as Portland and as far east as Boise, twenty-seven lots have been sold, and negotiations are in process with a number of prospective purchasers. Publicity matter has appeared in Eastern papers in Chicago, Kansas City, Pittsburg and New York, and tourists are being attracted to turn off at La Grande for a side-trip to Wallowa Lake.

Out of town trustees who attended this meeting were Rev. C. O. Heath of Enterprise, and Rev. Geo. H. Feese of Wallowa.

round table discussion closed the report of that committee.

The Old Oregon Trail committee will also come in for their share of the work to be done during the summer. They are expecting to take an active part, co-operating with other civic organizations in Eastern Oregon. This year in connection with the Old Oregon Trail, and expect to combine with the Auto Tourists and the Entertainment committees in their activities. All of the other committees reported and all are outlining definite work. With something ahead to work for, they expect to produce greater results than at any time during preceding years.
