SOMEBODY once said: "It takes a heap of living in a house to make it home." If that literary genius knew as much about gas as he apparently does about "Seein' Nellie Home" he would probably say: "It takes a pretty peppy gas to make old Lizzie go."

"Pep"—That's the middle name of Veltex. You won't have to hitch your kite to a star if you fill your tank with Veltex gas.

We aren't going to tell you about its high volatilization qualities or that it doesn't reline your cylinders with carbon. But, in the vernacular of the filling station gent we'll say, "Fill her up again, Brother, with the best dodd-rotted gas there is and we'll kiss the miles goodbye."—Veltex—that's her.

On the Mountain Top

CLIMB the mountain—stand on the peak—and before you there unfolds a panorama extending as far as your eye can reach. Stay in the valley, and your view is restricted by the surrounding hills.

This newspaper—properly used—will guide you to the mountain top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse the doings of the day.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited—you remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but of much that concerns you even more vitally—news of the very things that have to do with your personal, everyday life.

Some one might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for shoes or clothing—but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news columns, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live a happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.
