CAN BOXER BE GENTLEMAN? FILM ANSWERS

Jack London's Famous Story Proves Man Is Man Regardless Of His Occupation

What is a "real man"? What is a "gentleman"? Those two terms are constantly in use in today's literature of several types.

Webster achieved simple definitions of "man" and "gentleman" but usage makes such words more complex than the dictionary will consider.

Jack London's famous novel of the prize ring, "The Abyssal Brute," has been filmed and comes to the Arcade theatre Thursday Friday and Saturday as a Universal-Jewel special production.

The heroine does not think so. She is an ultra-cultured, superlative creature of the most exclusive class.

"The Abyssal Brute," guided by the gifted pen of London and the superb directing ability of Hobart Henley, analyzes the questions from both sides.

One of the strongest casts seen in any recent filmplay supports Denny in "The Abyssal Brute," and includes Mabel of Julianne Scott, Charles French, Neil Craig, Irene Halman, Hayden Stevenson, David Torrence, Buddy Messenger, George Stewart, Harry Man, Kid Wagner, Tom McGuire and others.

"The Westerners" is a dramatization of Stewart Edward White's famous novel of the same name, produced by Benjamin B. Hampton for Gros, Autiors, Pictures, Inc., and enacted by such eminent screen artists as Roy Stewart, Mildred Manning, Robert McKim, Winifred Lucas, Graham Pettie and Mary Jane Irving.

The story is laid in the Black Hills to the days of the gold rush, and tells in an absorbing manner of the unpubable revenge of Michael Lafond, a half-breed Indian, against Jim Buckley, scout, who caused Lafond to be driven from a wagon train for insulting one of the white women.

Lafond rises to power in the hills, murders the white woman, kidnaps her own daughter, and raises the child as his daughter, later using the girl as part of his scheme of revenge against Buckley.

Lafond plans to trap Buckley to his ruin and to force the girl, Molly, into the life of a dance hall woman.

Here he finds Buckley, now a leading citizen of the settlement. The former scout has no recollection of the half-breed, and the latter lays his plans to ruin Buckley without interaction. Molly, the only woman in the camp, enjoys the adoration of the male population. Among them is Cheyenne Harry, a reckless young hunter, who becomes her chief suitor. Meanwhile Lafond has succeeded in his scheme to disgrace Buckley in the eyes of his fellow men. He is forced out of the settlement. Lafond, however, is recognized before leaving camp in pursuit of Buckley. How Lafond's plans are frustrated and Molly is saved by the man she loves while the half-breed meets his just deserts in a plunge down a steep bank in a buckboard, brings a smashing climax to an enthralling narrative.

Correct this sentence: "The husband had a headache and the blues, but he smiled cheerfully and kept his troubles from his wife."
