"ABYSMAL BRUTE" FAMOUS
LONDON STORY, FILMED BY THE UNIVERSAL

The team work of two players on the screen, when perfected and polished, is an interesting thing, pleasing beyond the average qualities of a motion picture attraction.

The pictures that established Reginald Denny most firmly in the minds of the majority of fans were "The Leather Pushers," Universal's screening of the H. C. Witwer epic of humor which were published in Collier's. The applause from these showings has hardly died out, and now comes an elaborate Universal-starring Denny. "The Abysmal Brute," which is Jack London's famous novel of the squared circle, adapted by A.
P. Younger and directed by Hubert Henley, who made "The Flirt," Denny and Stevenson have the same relative positions as hero-fighter and manager. This is a feature which promises to be interesting to the multitude of fans who saw "The Leather Pushers," and it indicates an artistic excellence.

Mabel Julienne Scott of "No Woman Knows" and other special Universal productions has a strong dramatic role opposite Denny in "The Abysmal Brute."

SHERRY'S
TODAY AND TOMORROW
Harry Carey, most famous of Western screen stars, will fight and laugh his way across the screen in a new and sizzling screen thriller which marks the first showing here of "Crashin' Thru," which is hailed as the biggest and best picture of Carey's notable career.

One of the most thrilling scenes ever filmed is contained in "Crashin' Thru." It is that in which hundreds of four-maddened horses stampede directly toward the camera, with a roaring protest and kicking of plunging hoofs. Other spectacular scenes are a terrific wind storm and a gi-gantic landslide caused by an earthquaking explosion of dynamite.

But the spectacular is only part of the appeal of "Crashin' Thru." It is primarily a drama, tinged with the heart of the glowing west, and tells a tale of romance and adventure that is far off the beaten track of most western subjects.

Comedy showing "Felix the Cat."
